

On The Great White Way

NEAR-NEWS AND CHATTER FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

To the lady first correctly guessing the identity of the person of whom the following is a character sketch, and bringing a copy of this paper to The Tribune office, a cash prize of $1.00 will be given. The subject of the sketch is a prominent citizen of La Crosse. After winning one prize, a contestant will not be eligible to again compete for a period of three months.

The subject of last week's "Guess Who's Here" contest was Ori J. Jensen. The winner was Mrs. G. W. Frey, 613 North Tenth St.

The White Way editor feels akin to him. You see, we both sign ourselves "Ed." He's hardly above medium height, and of a pleasant plumpness at the equator. He's smooth, and getting smoother every day, especially on the top, for his vanishing hair already renders him eligible to a front seat when the show girls come. He's a merchant. He thinks in terms of invoices and his line of talk is eloquent of merchandise. He may not be exactly an iron man, but he's stood a great deal of hard wear. Since about last Wednesday Woodrow Wilson hasn't been the only president on the beach. Our hero hasn't made an inaugural speech, but he's duly elected, and he's going to revise the tariff by putting the wagon bridge on the free list. He has had a wide (Garland) range of experience. Although he's entirely unselfish, he has several axes to grind, or sell. He is an excellent salesman, no doubt because he's such a good credit man. Help! Teacher slapped me for that!

DOC SAYS:
SPEAKING OF BONEHEADS, WHEN I MEET A RUMMY PLAYER I BEGIN TO GET THE MEANING OF THE BIBLICAL OBSERVATION THAT "THE STONE WHICH THE BUILDERS REJECTED HAS BECOME THE HEAD OF THE COLUMN."

YARNS OF THE TOWN
In the days when the republican party rode in to its political campaigns on war horses La Crosse had no more gallant charger than Judge Benjamin F. Bryant, now Colonel Bryant, commander of the Wisconsin Veterans' Home, and "General" Bryant in the sunny south. Some of us whose gray hairs betray years that we hate to confess, recall no more inspiring sight than that presented by the good old judge at the head of the roistering torch light procession, or hurling forensic shot and shell at the democratic hosts from the political platform.

Judge Bryant is a good story teller, with a wealth of quiet humor, who has ever delighted to put one over on pal or comrade, and it is rumored that during the war he occasionally put one over on a confederate. Perhaps that is why, when recently for the first time since he was there as an invader Judge Bryant ventured south of Mason and Dixon's line, the confederates put one over on him. From the south Judge Bryant and two comrades went to Cuba, and while there Col. J. A. Watrous, of Milwaukee, told the story to the Havana Post. That paper says:

"Distinguished arrivals on the steamer Chamette from New Orleans yesterday were three veterans of the civil war, all holding the rank of general in the army of the confederacy. They are J. P. Rundle, B. F. Bryant and F. A. Walsh. The trio have been on an extensive tour of the south and are in Havana in continuation of their pleasure trip. Considering the ages of the three generals, their trip is a remarkable one. Gen. Bryant is 75, Gen. Rundle 70 and Gen. Walsh 65."

"A few weeks ago, when these three gentlemen left Milwaukee," remarked Lieut. Col. J. A. Watrous, "two of them, Gens. Rundle and Walsh, were modest and popular members of Wolcott post and Gen. Bryant was commandant of the Wisconsin Veterans' home. A false friend mustered them out of the Grand Army and mustered them into the confederate army and put silver stars upon their shoulders—made them generals."

"Wolcott post expects a visit from the three old confederate generals at Friday night's meeting. The veterans of Wolcott are preparing to give them the salute due to their new and exalted military rank."

It isn't the accident of birth, but a matter of gold to be an aristocrat, for the pseudo type is in the ascendancy. It's never a question of gift or worth. So we gather up ancient portraits To garnish the Family Tree And seek a genealogical shark To purchase a pedigree.

To purchase a pedigree is one thing; to have a pedigree thrust upon one is another. The latter is what happened to Vavrea, but let it be understood at the outset the Vavrea, in his borrowed plumage, may not rob Otto Schlachach of one iota of the glory of this epic.

Mr. Schlachach, benedict of a few wonderful days, wanted a dog in his household, and quite naturally he consulted Dr. Geo. Hauser, than whom there is no more expert or ardent dog fancier. Dr. Hauser had particularly fancied a fox terrier puppy which he had seen take a prize at the Chicago dog show, and Mr. Schlachach commissioned him to buy it. The deal was made by mail, and the terrier, Jack by name, came by express. Upon its arrival the doctor volunteered to bring it from the express office to that of Mr. Schlachach in the Linker block.

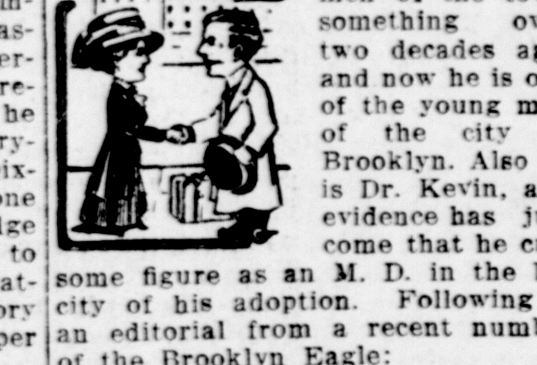

That "every little movement has a meaning all its own" was corroborated by the movement of Dr. Hauser to George Chresand's shoeshine parlors, instead of to the express office. There the doctor borrowed Vavrea, a bull-shaped pup of uncertain antecedents. At the express office he took Jack Fox Terrier from the express box and inserted Vavrea Near Pull in Jack's place. Then he hid Jack in the Linker barber shop, and depositing Vavrea, en box, upon Mr. Schlachach's roltop, ceremoniously handed the lawyer the gold-scolled pedigree. Then he went down stairs, and for a half hour stopped every man whom he recognized as an acquaintance of Otto, and invited them all to go up and see Otto's wonderful fox terrier.

One by one Otto proudly introduced them to Jack, his great fox terrier. It mattered not that the dog was among them pronounced the canine a bull and a hybrid at that. To these presumptuous ones the attorney solemnly read the pedigree.

"Some dog, wot!" said Otto. "Course it don't look like a fox terrier to you. You never saw a real one. This is from a royal strain. Reg'lar prince, aintch, Jack?" And Vavrea deceitfully licked the hand that dubbed him knight.

But when the audience had grown loud and the dissenters had grown scornful and Mr. Schlachach was about exploding with resentment of the insults heaped upon friend dog, in walked Dr. Hauser leading stylish little Jack Fox Terrier by a silver chain. Whereupon everybody laughed, and the pseudo king of dogs was canned and Jack ascended the throne and shook hands all around, and Otto laughed outwardly and raged inwardly and confided in Jack's ear that "some people is pups."

SHOULD AULD ACQUAINTANCE BE FORGOT

A good many years ago a good many people of La Crosse knew J. R. Kevin. He was one of the young men of the town something over two decades ago, and now he is one of the young men of the city of Brooklyn. Also he is Dr. Kevin, and evidence has just come that he cuts some figure as an M. D. in the big city of his adoption. Following is an editorial from a recent number of the Brooklyn Eagle:

"Brooklyn is to be complimented on the appointment of Dr. J. R. Kevin as a member of the State Board of Charities. Dr. Kevin has the respect of his professional brethren, the good-will of all who have come in contact with him in a many-sided life devoted to the public service, and the business ability to conduct his new office in the interest of the state and the taxpayers."

"The board to which Dr. Kevin has been appointed is a constitutional body. It consists of twelve members, one from each judicial district, and three additional members from New York City. Its functions are to visit and inspect all institutions of a charitable or correctional character. Prisons and asylums for the insane are exempt from its jurisdiction."

"The members serve without stated salary, although all their necessary expenses are paid, and a small fee is awarded for attendance at meetings."

"Taken altogether, Brooklyn has reason to feel that its interests will be cared for by Dr. Kevin in his new assignment to public service."

MUST DEPEND ON SOIL FOR LIVING

Education of Future Must in Some Way Inspire Love of Land, Says Cotton

TALKS AT TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Declares that Educational Problem of Future Is Different from that of Past

"In this country, as elsewhere, the vast majority of the people must finally get their sustenance from the soil, and the education of the future must in some way, more than ever before, inspire a love for the land." This was the assertion of F. A. Cotton, president of the La Crosse state normal school this morning in an address before the Western Wisconsin Teachers' association which opened a two days' convention at the La Crosse high school yesterday. President Cotton declared that the educational problem of the future is different from that of the past and urged the adoption of practical work in connection with the educational methods in schools. The topic of Mr. Cotton's address was "The Country School," and the speech is given in part as follows:

"The educational problem of the present and future is different from that of the past. New times and new conditions demand new measures and new men. The demand of the twentieth century is for an education that is really practical. It is for the education and training of the entire individual—morally, physically and mentally. There is no less demand for culture and scholarship in the broadest meaning of these terms, but there is more demand for an education that will meet the practical needs of life. It is a demand for training that will help the boy and girl use themselves skilfully in their life work. It is not a demand for the direct teaching of the trades so much as it is a call for the utilization of the common every day experiences in life."

"In the future there is to be a much closer relation between the school and life—between the school and the community, and the school is to do the things that will help the boys and girls find their life work. For a hundred years or more we have been too busy to make a careful study of either school or life, much less to discover any close relation between the two. Indeed, conditions have been such that no relation has been deemed necessary or possible. The school has preached its high ideals and has considered the work-a-day world as too commercial, and the business world and the practical affairs of life have considered the school as wholly impractical and visionary."

"Prodigal of Resources
"But now that our forests have been cleared and the timber sold, that our gas fields have been exhausted, that our oil regions have been tapped and pretty well drained, that our coal deposits for the most part have been leased, that our stone interests have fallen into the hands of syndicates, that our public utilities have gone for a song, we are beginning to study the conditions of life, and to ask serious questions with regard to the future. We realize that in our greed for gain we have been prodigal of our resources. Vast fortunes have been literally thrust upon the people of this nation."

"Of course great things have been accomplished. Travel and transportation are easy. Machinery of all kinds has lessened labor. But, with our ease and prosperity and rapid living, we stand face to face with the paradox that the thing that has enriched us has at the same time impoverished us. We have seemingly come suddenly upon new conditions to which we are unable to adjust ourselves."

"The Way of Redemption
"However, to the student, the way of redemption is apparent. If wit and abundance of raw material have made fortunes in the past, intelligent, trained workmen skilled in industry are inexhaustible assets that are to furnish comfortable competencies in the future. But everybody must work, and must work intelligently, because in the future these competencies must be earned, and very often earned in the sweat of the face. Therefore, every boy must be taught to work, and in the degree in which the home neglects this part of his education the school must take it up and carry it to completion."

"Problem of 20th Century School
"In this country, as elsewhere, the vast majority of the people must finally get their sustenance from the soil, and the education of the future must in some way, more than ever before, inspire a 'love for the land.' Here, then, is one of the great problems, if not the greatest problem of the country school of the twentieth century. Is the country school, as organized at present, prepared to solve this problem? It would be folly to claim that it is. Under the conditions that have obtained, and under the notion that has prevailed, the country school has done as well as could be expected. But for the future our system is inadequate."

"The school should at least help

ALLIES READY FOR INTERNAL TROUBLE

Bulgaria Demands Salonika and Is Prepared to Fight Greece for the City

SERBIANS DESERT MONTENEGRO

Serbs and King Nicholas on Outs but Tiny Country Sticks to Siege of Scutari

VIENNA, April 12.—Peace in the Balkan states today seemed as far away as ever. The Balkan states allies seem to be neglecting Turkey, their common enemy, in their international strifes and their efforts to keep out of a wrangle with the great European powers.

Dispatches today from Sofia said that the Bulgarians were preparing to back up their demand for Salonika by force of arms. The Bulgarians made formal demands for the city, which were refused by the Greeks.

All of the Servian troops have withdrawn from the siege of Scutari and are on their way home, according to Belgrade advices. It is hinted in Cetinje that the Servians were scared off by the international blockade of Montenegro by the European powers.

With Montenegro and Servia in acrimonious debate and Bulgaria and Greece at each other's throats, the Turks are said to be getting ready for another desperate assault on the Bulgarians along the Tchataldja lines.

The Montenegro situation is the most complicated in Europe now. Regardless of the naval blockade by all the powers and the land blockade by Austria-Hungary, the soldiers of King Nicholas today were still before Scutari threatening another assault.

POPE HAS RELAPSE PHYSICIANS WORRY

Pontiff Suffers from Severe Attack of Bronchitis and Recurrence of Influenza

BISHOPS' AUDIENCE THE CAUSE

Return of Illness Due to Disobedience of Doctor's Orders in Seeing Prelates

ROME, April 12.—Pope Pius X suffered a relapse late this afternoon. Drs. Marchiafava and Amici, the papal physicians, summoned hastily to the pope's sick room in the Vatican, found the pontiff suffering from a severe attack of bronchitis and a recurrence of influenza.

The doctors said that the pope's condition was due to over-exertion, caused by his insistence on receiving bishops last night and this morning, in violation of their orders. In the weakened condition of his nervous system and heart and in view of his advanced age, the doctors feared the results of the coughing brought on by the bronchial attack. Immediately after it became known that the pope had suffered a relapse, Prof. Marchiafava issued an official bulletin in which he diagnosed the pontiff's condition as a recurrence of influenza, complicated by bronchitis.

Though the pope had considerable fever, the physician insisted that his condition was not serious.

CARY'S LEAD 31,000

MADISON, Wis., April 12.—Official returns from all counties in the state with the exception of Dane, Green, Milwaukee, Oneida and Waushara, tabulated here today by the secretary of state, give Charles P. Cary, state superintendent of schools a majority of 31,868 over William Kittle, his opponent in the election April 1. Kittle carried eleven of the seventy counties: Ashland, Bayfield, Douglas, Dunn, La Crosse, Lincoln, Pepin, Price, Racine, St. Croix, Trempealeau and Winnebago most of them by small majorities.

PROMINENT MAN WHO DIED FRIDAY

Marcus A. Anderson, head of the Anderson Carpet company, who died yesterday, will be buried from the Congregational church at 3:00 o'clock tomorrow. The body will lie in state in the church from 9 in the morning until the funeral in the afternoon. Burial will be made in the mausoleum at Oak Grove cemetery.

PLEADS FOR A NEW DEMOCRACY

Dr. Geo. E. Vincent, President of Minnesota University, Says Vocation and Culture Must Join

IS AN AGE OF NEW STANDARDS

Declares that Vocational Education Contains in Itself a High Degree of Culture

"Vocation and culture must be brought together in order to reinforce each other, to arouse us to new effort that this nation may take its place in the world, to turn manufacturing prosperity into happiness, brotherhood and democracy." With this stirring and eloquent summary, President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota, speaking at the high school last night before the Western Wisconsin Teachers' association, brought to a close an address on "Vocation and Culture" which will remain long in the minds of those who had the opportunity of hearing it. The speaker held the rapt attention of his listeners with his rare ability to combine humor and sound philosophy.

President Vincent compared the commencement exercises of a small agricultural college with the most refined Boston aristocracy and in doing so stated that the old idea of culture necessitated a knowledge of such subjects as Latin and Greek. "Standards have changed," he said. "Vocation and efficiency are common terms. Supervision produces efficiency. If a person has a wide margin and is never tested he acquires a low degree of the latter quality."

Age of Specialists

"The modern day is an age of specialists although in the frontier system of times past the specialist was a subject of derision. Every man had to be a jack of all trades. No man should monopolize a good thing so the passing around of public offices received its inception during this period. The great resources of this country have left it untested for many years but with the passing of these the test for efficiency is soon to come. With a decline in exports each year the time of importation will eventually arrive and America will begin to wake up to the fact that with a low efficiency she will be in an uncomfortable position with Germany being the chief cause of uneasiness on account of its increasing industrial capacity."

"The country must be efficient in agriculture in order to hold its own in feeding itself. Industrial education is necessary for national welfare. Education and the churches are always behind the times but this is a necessary condition as they are the conservative elements in our national life."

"A gradual readjustment of the schools toward vocational education has necessitated a new definition of culture. No special curriculum is needed to obtain culture, as it should be available to the entire population."

The speaker ridiculed the "liberal" education of several of the eastern colleges and preparatory schools claiming that they based their standards of a liberal education on whether or not one could pass a list of entrance examinations.

"Aristocratic 'prep' schools tend toward segregation in education," he said, "thus putting the individual out of sympathy with the rest of the world. Vocational education is ab-

MRS. PANKHURST IS OUT TO RECOVER

Leader Must Go Back to Prison as Soon as She Has Recuperated Sufficiently

REMAINS FIRM IN HUNGER STRIKE

Tempting Roast and Savory Foods Placed Where She Can Smell Them in Vain

LONDON, April 12.—Released from Holloway jail on the ninth day of her hunger strike and liable to reincarceration at the will of Home Secretary McKenna, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffragette leader, was said to be in a very grave condition from exhaustion, by physicians who examined her thoroughly as soon as she reached the private hospital to which she was removed today. The doctors found Mrs. Pankhurst to be greatly weakened by her long abstinence from everything but water. Her years made her condition more serious.

Must Return to Prison

Mrs. Pankhurst served but one week and two days of the three years' sentence imposed on her for the Walton Heath explosion, and it is the intention of the home office that she return to prison as soon as her health is restored.

By order of Home Secretary McKenna, the prison authorities last night made their last effort to overcome Mrs. Pankhurst's defiance. A savory roast of beef and steaming hot vegetables were placed where their odors could not miss the nostrils of the starving woman. It was the official hope that the leader, weakened by long fasting, would let matter overcome mind for once and ask for food. But she did nothing of the kind. Sniffing once at the smell of food, Mrs. Pankhurst turned over on her cot and paid no further attention to the ruse.

DRAG REVELERS BEFORE INQUIRY

Cabaret Cafes of Chicago Raided Early Today by White Slave Commission

HYSTERICAL GUESTS BEG FREEDOM

Plead on Knees before Officers to Be Allowed to Escape the Drag-net

CHICAGO, April 12.—Spectacular raids on the two fashionable downtown cafes early today threw several hundred midnight revelers into panic and brought into the net of the Illinois senate white slave probes a score of witnesses from the so-called "society" element.

Cafe guests, faces flushed with wine, were intercepted as they whirled and glided in the "tango" or "trot" to seductive and dreamy music, served with subpoenas by special investigators for the committee, and hurried away to the Hotel La Salle to tell what part the "fast past" plays in the social evil.

Visitors Hysterical

Two married women from Peoria, Ill., on an automobile "slumming" tour, went into hysterics when investigators ordered them with their men companions to climb into an automobile and speed to the Hotel La Salle. A woman member of another slumming party leaped through a window of the cafe of Roy Jones, Wabash and Twenty-first street, near the old segregated district.

Women in cafes and "redlight" district all-night restaurants fell on their knees and begged the investigators to permit them to go. Men waved hands full of bills and pleaded to be given their freedom. Officers who aided the investigators, blocking doors, held back hysterical, weeping, cursing crowds while the probers hurried witnesses into a small army of automobiles and off to the room where the hearing was held.

Crowds fought today to obtain admission to the Red room of the Hotel La Salle when the investigating commission resumed its sessions.

Expectation that dozens of society revelers, caught in the cafe raid would be forced to testify was the attraction. In the big throng that jammed the lobby of the hotel were men and women of social prominence who themselves escaped the net of the investigators. They hung back, evidently fearing they would be recognized and forced to the stand.

Hear Cabaret Performers

In a committee session that lasted until 2:30 o'clock this morning, none of the society dancers gathered in raids on Rector's and The States restaurant were examined. The senators heard testimony of cabaret performers, managers and of members of a slumming party and then adjourned.

WILSON PAT ON TARIFF STAND

Says Howl that Low Tariff Will Hurt Trade Is False and that Business Is Self-supporting

WOULD CHEAPEN ALL NECESSITIES

If People Stand by Him New Executive Says He Can Lower Cost of Living

Pres. Wilson's Tariff Views.
I am always afraid business men who are uneasy have something to be uneasy about. The farmer has never been protected; he never needed to be protected. "Cost of production" is never the same in any one factory. For two years together. Haven't you seen competition disappear? The people of the United States are taking notice as never before. What the people wear and eat must be made cheap.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN, (Staff Correspondent United Press)

WASHINGTON, April 12.—President Wilson will "stand pat" on free wool and ultimate free sugar. The crisis in the tariff fight was reached today in both the house and senate committees. It found Wilson fighting and ready to carry his fight to the people.

The United Press is able today to present in part President Wilson's tariff views, as he sketched them during the campaign, as he has expounded them to congressional leaders, and as he expects to urge them in a direct appeal to the people if he believes he is forced to the course by opposition in the capitol.

"What the people put on their backs and in their stomachs must be made cheap, no matter who suffers," was the president's final word to the senate finance committee.

He insisted that a statement designed to create the idea throughout the country, by a campaign of advertising, that the passage of the tariff bill would be disastrous to the business of the country, was absolutely false. He referred his callers to his views on his subject frequently uttered, when he said:

"I am always afraid that business men who are uneasy have something to be uneasy about. The people of the United States are taking notice before, and gentlemen who talk one way and vote another are going to be retired to a quiet and private retirement."

Believes in People.

That is the president's position. He sees no reason to compromise. He believes the people will stand by him and that, if they will, he can compel the tariff to be adjusted so that the filling of the market baskets of the nation will be far less costly than at present. In this connection the president has directed attention to the position that he took when it was charged that the low tariff would hit the farmer hardest. The president said:

"The farmers in the United States have never been protected, for the very good reason that they

LITTLE GIRL DYING NURSE TO MOTHER

La Crosse Child Contracts Tuberculosis While Caring for Her Stricken Mother

MADISON, Wis., April 12.—In a recent issue The State Journal says: "Up in La Crosse there is a little 15-year-old girl gradually fading away, and when the spring flowers begin to bloom the child will probably give up a long, hard fight against tuberculosis."

"This little girl not so long ago was well and happy and as full of life as children of her age should be."

"Her mother was stricken with tuberculosis. The family was without means. The girl was the mother's nurse, and constantly watched over her. The mother died, and in a short time the child was stricken, having contracted the malady while taking care of her mother."

"Perhaps you have heard of such cases, for they exist in nearly every city in the state."

"Dr. Evans yesterday afternoon

presented this case to a joint committee of the legislature in his argument for the Boshard bill relating to county sanitariums for the care of advanced cases of tuberculosis. The bill provides that the state shall pay 18 counties maintaining such sanitariums, $5 per week for the care of each patient, the annual amount to be paid by the state not to exceed $50,000.

"It was announced that the committee would report the bill for passage."

"Physicians from nearly every leading city in the state appeared before the committee and spoke for the bill."

TOWN OFFICIALS ARE FOUND SHORT

MARINETTE, WIS., April 12.—Town board of Stephenson, Marinette county, on Friday declined to make public the findings of an expert accountant who examined the town's books. It is understood the report finds two former town officials short in their funds, and that the report is suppressed so that prosecution can be brought against the men alleged to be short.

WE URGE A TRIAL TODAY

PIERRE LA VALLE IN DAYTON PERIL

Former La Crosse Man and Family Imprisoned Four Days in Flooded Hotel; Lose Outfit

BARELY ESCAPE WITH LIVES

Cries of Victims in Surrounding Burning Buildings Heard Through the Foodless Days

In a letter to friends here Pierre LaValle, for many years linotype machinist of The Tribune, and now proprietor of "The Tossing LaValles," a big-circuit vaudeville attraction, tells of his experiences in the Dayton flood, from which he and his team escaped with their lives by a narrow margin. The letter follows:

In Heart of Flood.
"We were caught in the Dayton flood. We lost all our wardrobe, trunks and tumbling-pads, and escaped with only the clothes we had on our backs. We are glad we got away with our lives."

"You are, of course, acquainted with all the newspaper details of the flood. While the first account of the number of deaths was exaggerated, still the later estimate is, in my opinion, too low. The true number of people who gave up their lives in the Dayton disaster will never be known. Had the disaster occurred in the early evening when the great number of the pleasure-loving people were enjoying the evening sights or at the theaters, the loss of life would have been appalling. When the levee broke, about 7 o'clock in the morning, a solid wall of water 6 feet high swept madly down Main street, the principal business street of Dayton, at a speed of about 20 miles an hour, tearing, breaking and sweeping everything before it. The enormous force of this terrible volume of water broke down all the plate glass fronts of the business houses on Main street and swept all the contents of the ground floors into the turbulent stream. Men, horses, automobiles, pianos and all kinds of goods and merchandise were carried away on the crest of the flood. I witnessed some awful sights, the remembrance of which will last forever. I saw some acts of splendid heroism as well as acts of abject cowardice."

Marooned in Hotel.
"We were marooned in a professional theatrical hotel among some one hundred others, men and women. While we did not have anything to eat or drink from Monday night till the following Thursday at 2 in the afternoon, we did not unduly suffer from hunger or thirst. The excitement made us forget all about that. The nights were dreadful. No lights. Explosions were heard from different parts of the city, then fires broke out at five different points surrounding our hotel. It was fortunate that the rain kept pouring steadily down, for had it been otherwise what was left of Dayton by the flood would certainly have been destroyed by fire. Cries for help were heard continually in the burning districts during the nights of Tuesday and Wednesday."

"The waters began to recede late Wednesday night, and by Friday morning we were able to get out of the hotel and walk the streets once more. What sights met our eyes! We made our way four miles out of town, where we boarded a train for Springfield, O. From Springfield we made our way to Chicago, where we fixed up again and came back to finish our season."

"We were lucky we came out of it alive. We are all well physically and have about resumed our normal gait. We are systematically hopeful for a better future, but believe me, I have had enough of water for some time. Regards to all."

"Sincerely,
"PIERRE LAVALLEE."

NON-MEMBERS ARE WELCOME AT FEAST

Anyone not a member of the Y. M. C. A. is welcome to attend the banquet to be given in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary at the Masonic temple this evening. Many non-members have already applied for seats. Most of the members have been heard from and while a large percentage will be present, the fact that it is on Saturday evening will keep some from coming. There could be no other arrangement on the date as it was the only time Dr. Geo. E. Vincent could be secured. The teachers who are in session in La Crosse postponed their convention for several months to make it possible to have Dr. Vincent with them, and the Y. M. C. A. is fortunate in that through this arrangement it was possible to have this famous speaker remain in the city for this anniversary occasion. Congressman John J. Esch, writing from Washington and sending his regrets at being unable to attend, says further "The association in our city has been so strong a factor for righteousness that every citizen should feel it a duty to attend this anniversary and by his presence show his appreciation of the great services rendered during the last thirty years."

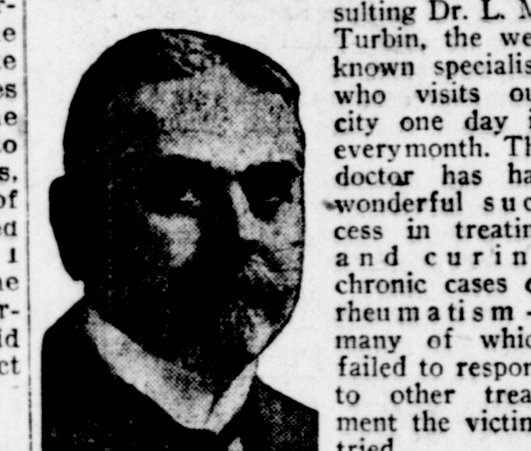

Telephone the office of the Y. M. C. A. and let them reserve you a place at the banquet.

There are all kinds of people in this widespread world, including, perhaps, a few who haven't fads enough.

RHEUMATISM

Is probably the most common and the most discouraging ailment known to mankind, from the fact that, being produced by seemingly trivial imprudences, it gradually obtains so firm a hold upon the system as to try the patience of a saint and to defy all ordinary methods of treatment. The average person does not understand that rheumatism results directly from impurities—such as excess of uric acids, etc., in the blood. Usually the persons whose occupations force them to lead inactive or indoor lives, or are so situated that the obtaining of proper exercise or proper food is extremely difficult are the victims of rheumatism. Under such conditions the liver and kidneys become clogged with waste materials and lack the strength to throw off the waste that becomes poison and is communicated to the blood, and through the blood to the other organs and muscles. In order to conquer the disease, it is necessary not only to alleviate the pain for the time being, but treatment that will drive the poisons from the blood and restore the organs to a healthy condition so that they will perform their functions naturally, must be used.

The symptoms of rheumatism are: dull aching of joints or muscles—increasing to severe, and sometimes almost unbearable pains—usually following exposure to cold and wet; muscles tender upon pressure—this being more frequently observed in those muscles of shoulders, chest, forehead and temples; pains and "aches" in loin and back (sometimes called lumbago)—also, frequently the condition known as "wry-neck"—where the head and neck are twisted and cannot be brought back into a natural position. Sharp, shooting pains are experienced in the afflicted members, whenever a sudden and incautious movement is indulged in. As the disease progresses, feverishness, swelling, stiffness and sub-acute pains may become more and more pronounced. Complications of eye, throat and other organs follow logically, and in many neglected cases the rheumatic trouble goes to the heart—causing organic disease and ultimate death of the sufferer. The natural progress of the disease depends largely upon habits of eating and condition of bowels, and it is hastened by any undue exposure to the elements. The above symptoms can all be avoided and cured if you will only secure the proper treatment, which can be obtained by consulting Dr. L. M. Turbin, the well known specialist, who visits our city one day in every month. The doctor has had wonderful success in treating and curing chronic cases of rheumatism—many of which failed to respond to other treatment the victims tried.

LOST—A SOLITAIRE

By MOLLY McMASTER

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Roger Lewis sank discontentedly into the lone chair beside his breakfast table. It seemed more or less ungracious considering the fact that the coffee was emitting little joyous sounds from the percolator and the muffins, under a silver cover, were worthy of a king's palate.

Good old Sarah, who had served Roger since boyhood, smiled understandingly, and with the familiarity born of long servitude uttered her thoughts.

"You would not be sighing that way if a bonnie golden head were at the other side of the table, I'm thinking," she said.

Roger smiled boyishly and his eyes lit up.

"You are right, Sarah," he agreed, "what I need is somebody with one of those little lace caps with the pink bows on them opposite me." He gazed whimsically up at Sarah. "And I want her to have many little gold-colored curls peeping out through the lace."

Sarah laughed and watched Roger buttering his second muffin.

"I could manage the pair of you as well as one," she hinted and retired to her kitchen.

For a moment more Roger contemplated the joy of watching slim white fingers turning the small percolator spout and drawing forth his cup of coffee. After that he sighed and picked up his morning paper.

Perhaps it was because his mind was more or less matrimonially bent that a small item caught his attention. It read:

"Twenty-five dollars reward for the return of a solitaire engagement ring. No questions asked. M. Carr, 177 Riverside."

"Humph!" muttered Roger Lewis: "all solitaires look alike—there is a good chance for some one with a ring who needs a little ready money." He read the name again. "M. Carr would probably not know her own ring from any other."

Rogers perused his paper, but for some peculiar reason he seemed destined to remember the name of M. Carr. He wondered what she was like and by what carelessness she had lost her precious ring. Also he speculated as to whether the lucky man knew of the loss. Roger considered any engaged man lucky.

"At least he has some one to squander money on," thought Roger, and suddenly he smiled. He, too, could spend money on this same careless girl. There was nothing to hinder him from buying a solitaire, having the initials M. C. engraved there-in and going with it to Miss Carr's home.

Roger finished his breakfast hurriedly. The thought of an unconventional meeting with any girl, whether she be engaged or not, was at least amusing.

Afterward, when he had written out a big check and walked out of the jeweler's with a startlingly beautiful diamond ring in his hand, he began to feel foolish.

"I am all kinds of an idiot!" he complimented himself, "but I seem to want to see this thing through."

It was nearing the dusk of twilight when Roger approached the home on Riverside. It was a big apartment building and he was carried by the elevator to the top floor.

The oddity of his experience brought a smile to Roger's eyes and when the door opened in response to his knock the smile slipped to his lips.

She who had opened the door was both joyous and beautiful.

"I have an engagement ring," Roger said quickly, "and I seek the one to whom it belongs."

A silvery laugh followed his words. The girl in the doorway motioned him within, and when the door had closed behind him Roger felt suddenly weak. Was it the perfume of the girl's sunny head or the radiance of her smile? Something, he knew not what, had pierced his being with the swiftness of an arrow.

"Do you know," the girl was saying as she lead the way to a dainty room that overlooked the river, "you are the tenth man who has been here in answer to my advertisement."

"Then you are M. Carr?" Roger found himself asking. He mechanically held toward her the ring he had bought.

An involuntary exclamation of surprise left Madge Carr's lips. A little flush had stolen into her cheeks while she examined the clear sparkling stone.

Roger had ample time to admire the golden curls that could have peeped from beneath the lace cap had she worn one.

"It is not my ring—I am sorry to say," she told him with a smile that stirred Roger's heart to action. "It is such a beauty."

"But it has your initials inside," Roger informed her. There was so much disappointment in his voice that Madge laughed aloud.

"I am more sorry than ever—that it is not mine," she said and slipped the ring onto her engagement finger. Roger's eyes gleamed and he knew then and there that some day he would make Madge Carr wear his ring. He arose to go.

"There is no chance of my knowing the man to whom you are engaged, I suppose," he said. "I know an awful lot of men." He looked down at her and his jaw had squared. He could almost see her slim white fingers turning the spout of his percolator and good old Sarah waiting upon them. When Madge looked up and met his expression he glanced swiftly away. After a moment she said:

"I am not engaged. I put that advertisement in the paper just to get a story." She was speaking hurriedly. There was something new in her smile, and the big man standing beside her seemed to have taken quick possession of the situation. "I write fiction and the idea of seeing what would happen after that advertisement made me—"

"Not engaged—hurrah!" cried Roger Lewis, forgetting that ten minutes before he had not so much as seen Madge Carr. "Sarah will be delighted," he added under his breath. "You see I often do foolish things like that—just to see what will happen and get a little excitement."

Madge was telling him as he made his way toward the door which now seemed the gate of happiness. "I hope you will find the owner soon. Whoever lost that one must surely be weeping."

Roger turned suddenly and stood very near the girl with the golden ringlets and slim fingers.

"I bought that ring and had your initials put into it just before coming up here. Yours is the first finger it has been on, and it is never going to be on any other." His tone was bantering, but Madge Carr recognized something in it that made her catch a swift breath.

"Truth is sometimes stranger than fiction," was all she thought of to say.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Some Nice

Stories of the Wise Ants

ONE evening daddy noticed that Jack was unusually thoughtful and spoke very little. "What are you thinking about, son?" asked daddy.

"I'm just wondering, daddy," answered Jack, "if animals think just as we do."

"Where," said daddy, "that's a big question for such a small boy! Really I do not think that question can be answered, Jack. Some wise men believe animals think, others deny it. But even if animals do not think it seems to be pretty certain that some insects do. There's the ant, for an example. It often acts as though it could think."

"Some years ago there was a wise man who believed ants were able to think. He wanted to prove it, so one cold day when almost all of his ants were in their nests and one was out hunting about six feet from home he took a dead fly, pinned it on to a cork and placed it just in front of the ant. The ant at once tried to carry off the fly and was surprised to find that it could not be moved. The poor insect tugged and tugged, first one way and then another, for about twenty minutes and then left the fly and returned straight to the nest."

"While it was trying to move the fly not a single ant had come out of the nest. But the hunter ant went straight in and in a few seconds came out with no less than twelve friends. It was an interesting sight to watch them march straight to the body of the fly, work away at it until they got it loose and then carry it off."

"Now, the first ant took nothing home with it, so it must have made its friends understand in some way that there was food outside and that help was needed to bring it in. If the ant did not think this out, how could it have brought help so quickly?"

"Another time this wise man tells about an ant was hurt and lay helplessly on her side outside of her nest. Several other ants passed her without taking any notice, but soon one came up, examined her carefully and carried her off carefully to the nest. Of course the second ant must have had something like what we call a kind heart and must have been able to think that the first ant needed help. Perhaps the ants have among themselves some-thing like our Golden Rule."

"Once there was a poor ant which hurt itself so badly that it lay on its back and was quite helpless. The wise man says that the ants which belonged to the same nest were unable to move the injured ant, so for three months, until it was well, they brought food to it and tended it carefully. The wise man says he is quite sure that ants can think and have some way of talking to one another, although, of course, they cannot talk as folks do."

NEW WATER PLANTAs the new water plant approaches completion a new problem of administration confronts the City of La Crosse. There is no doubt that Mr.
Sorensen will attempt the abolition of the board of public works, and provided there is substituted therefor some working organization that will be an improvement the end is devoted to be sought. But the management of a half million dollar water plant is a job too big to be made one of the several duties either of the present board or of any new board that may be organized to take over the manifold obligations of the present board.There has been suggested a non-partisan and non-salaried commission similar to the fire and police commission, under the supervision of which there shall be a competent superintendent to have full charge of and devote all of his time to the administration of the water plant.We believe the suggestion is a wise one.MAY HEAR WILSON'S VOICE 1,000 YEARSWe're a blase lot. The moving picture world is getting ready for the adaptation to its business of an invention that will preserve the human voice—your voice, if you say anything worth while—so that the man of today shall talk to the people of his own progeny in the lot, unto countless generations, and for all time. Yet we are not only not excited about it, but give it barely a passing thought. Perhaps, because it is not yet in general use, its meaning has not yet dawned upon us.The importance of the venerable Wizard's latest triumph may be more readily understood if we pause to consider that, had the kinetoscope
been a fact in the days of Shakespeare we of today might see the bard
of Avon step to the front of a London stage and hear his own voice reciting the prologue of one of his plays. Coming more down to date
we might have on the film the famous Maggie Kitchel of our own land;
those of us lucky enough to haveseen Joseph Jefferson and Sir Henry Irving would have more than mere wordy description to hand down to the generation to whom these names are rapidly coming to have little but a historic significance.If the kinetophone had been invented within the last century we might today see Lincoln's face and hear his voice as he delivered the Gettysburg speech. We might review with eyes and ears as well as minds the eloquence that made Daniel Webster and Henry Clay famous. In short we might have unrolled before us all the great personalities and the great events in the drama of history.The kinetophone was invented but a short time ago. The machine itself, wonderful as it is, may prove disappointing to a public satiated with wonders and demanding the climax of perfection even from first efforts. But the mind that is alive to the inner significance of things hardly can fail to pause with something like awe when it realizes what it will mean in the future.AN INTERNATIONAL ARMY AND NAVYThe assertion that President Wilson favors a greater navy may have caused some surprise. At any rate,
he will find considerable opposition.
Of course there is a portion of logic
to sustain the greater armament, but the friends of disarmament, by missing what seems to be compromise vital to the present, help make the case of their opponents.About a month ago, in his message to parliament, President Poincare, of France, said:"It is impossible for any nation to be effectively pacific unless it is always ready for war."That Poincare then voiced the sentiment of the French people is indicated by the fact that important internal reforms have since been abandoned to give way to the naval program.Disarmament always has and probably always will be one of the recommendations made by those who want peace, but who have failed to study the conditions which make for peace. This idea is slowly being abandoned as impracticable for any one nation to follow. In its place is coming a demand for mutual agreements limiting armaments
such as that recently entered into by Great Britain and Germany, heretofore in a mad race for naval us-premacny, but now limited to the maintenance of the present ratio.The logical next step is co-operation among the principal nations for the keeping of the general peace. The Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente in Europe are the first signs of an approach at international joint action. Today they are at cross-purposes, but the time may come when they will afford the nucleus for an international police force. When we have this international police force as a tangible reality we can talk of disarmament for individual nations. If they so agreed, the civilized powers could join in the maintenance of an army and navy sufficient to enforce peace, at an aggregate cost little greater than the cost of maintaining the present
German army and navy.WHERE THE PRESIDENT STANDS ON PRIVILEGEThere may yet be doubts as to what congress proposes to do in the way of carrying out the platform pledges of the democratic party, but there is no doubt as to what President Wilson believes should be done and hopes to have done. The following paragraph from the president's message may be taken as the text of the administration:"We must abolish everything that bears even the semblance of privilege or of any kind of artificial advantage, and put our business men and producers under the stimulation
of a constant necessity to be efficient economical and enterprising masters of competitive supremacy, better workers and merchants than any in the world. . . . The object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the whetting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world."Experts to analyze the tariff are desired by the democrats. Real experts on tariff who will be able to adjust it to universal satisfaction,
are as scarce as radishes at the north pole.Judging from the influx of foreigners, the old fashioned Yankee with the bah-bah whiskers will command a good salary in museums two generations hence.If firemen took all the advice offered them at fires, they would not only avoid all criticisms, but would be able to save the well and cellar.What some fond parents consider

Life.

Life! I know not what thou art,
But know that thou and I must part;
And when or how or where we met,
I own to me's a secret yet.But this I know, when thou art fled, Where'er they lay these limbs, this head,No clod so valueless shall be,
As all that then remains of me.
O whither, whither dost thou fly,
Where bend unseen thy trackless
course,And in this strange divorce Ah, tell me where I must seek this compound I?To the vast ocean of empyreal flame,
From whence thy essence came,
Dost thou thy flight pursue, when freedFrom matter's base encumbering
weed?Or dost thou, hid from sight,
Wait like some spellbound knight,
Through blank oblivion's years th'
appointed hourTo break thy trance and reassume thy power?Yet canst thou without thought or feeling be?O say what art thou, when no more thou'rt thee?Life! we've been long together, Through pleasant and through cloudy
weather;'Tis hard to part when friends art
dear;Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear:
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time;Say not good night, but in some brighter clime,
Bid me good morning.

A Story Jones Tells

Mrs. Francis gave orders to her new Irish maid to be careful in admitting callers one morning, as she was very busy. Shortly after the girl came to her mistress and said:"There's a man below to see ye, mum.""But I told you not to admit any men, Maggie," said the mistress.

"What did you tell him?"

"I told him, mum," replied Maggie, "that ye told me if it wuz a loidy
to say ye were in, and if it wuz a man to say ye wuz out.""Well," asked the mistress, "what did he say then?""Indade, mum," said the maid,
"he said to tell yez that he wuz a loidy, mum."—Chicago Record-Her-

Difficult to Comb

A party of tourists in an automobile were traveling through a mountainous section of country. A halt was made at a log cabin to obtain information in regard to the route.
The only visible occupant of the cabin was an untidy, unkempt old white woman. A young woman of the party whose hair had become loosened went into the cabin and deftly and with dispatch combed and put up her hair. The old woman watched the proceedings with interest. Finally she asked:"Does you comb yo' hair every day?""Oh, yes," was the smiling response."I never did see," said the old woman with a dubious shake of the head, "how folks could comb their hair every day. I don't comb mine but once a year, an' then it might nigh kills me!"

The Trained Dog

At least six men had told of some wonderful stunt performed by their respective kloodies before Governor Brown of Georgia broke into the gabfest."A friend of mine in Atlanta," he finally remarked with a reflective smile, "once bought the nicest dog
you ever saw to chase burglars, cats and tramps, but no sooner had he been introduced in the domestic camp than wifey wanted him trained to carry newspapers and other things
for the entertainment of society.""Agreeable to his wife's wishes,
my friend took the canine in hand
and in a little while he had him so well trained that he would carry a package all over the town and keep it in his mouth until told to drop it.""He had owned the dog about six months when he heard strange sounds in the dead of the night, and,
seizing his gun, he softly crept down stairs. The burglars were there, all right.""Where was the dog?" impatiently broke in one of the governor's audience. "Didn't he bark?""The dog was there," replied the governor, "but he was too busy to bark."

"Busy?" exclaimed the others.

"What was he doing?"

"Carrying a lantern for the burglars while they ransacked the house," answered the governor.

The Discouraged Historian

John Boyle has snow white hair, a failing for democratic politics, and several jobs as correspondent for financial and trade journals. One night he entered the National Press club in Washington after attending a democratic rally in the capital city.
He was thoroughly indignant, not to say worked up to a high pitch and lashed into a frenzy. He met his old friend, John Walsh."Now, said Boyle, with emphasis,
"I am going to tell you the whole story of the democratic situation in this city."John Walsh displayed no enthusiasm in the narrative which was about to be thrust upon him.And immediately John Boyle changed his mind."No," said Boyle regretfully, "I won't tell you. If I did you wouldn't have the intelligence to understand it.""Delighted by your reticence," replied Walsh urbanely. "It takes the sting out of your insult."—Popular

began to notice a breaking out on my leg.
At first it was very small but soon it began to spread until it formed large blisters. The itching was terrible and almost constant. Many nights I could not sleep at all.
After scratching it to relieve the itching, it would burn
so dreadfully that I thought I could not stand it. For nearly a year I tried all kinds of salves and ointment, but found no relief. Some salves seemed to make it worse until there were ugly sores, which would break open and run.""One day I saw an advertisement of Cuticura Remedies. I got a sample of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and began by washing the sores with the Cuticure Soap then applying the Cuticura Ointment twice a day. I noticed a change and got more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few weeks I was cured. It has healed
so nicely that no scar remains." (Signed)

"I purpose to suggest to Moxlow
a fresh line of investigation where this important witness is concerned, and Mr. Gilmore as the man most likely to clear up the mystery surrounding his disappearance from Mount Hope. We may not be able to get anything very tangible out of him in the way of information, but I imagine we may cause him some little anxiety and annoyance. You can't afford to be mixed up in this affair, and I warn you again to stand clear of Gilmore! If there is any truth in Montgomery's statement it can only have the most sinister significance, for I don't need to tell you that some powerful motive must be back of Gilmore's activity. If North was not responsible for McBride's death, where do the indications all point? Who more likely to commit such a crime than a social outcast—a man plying an illegal trade in defiance of the laws?""Hush! For God's sake speak lower!" cried Marshall, giving way to an uncontrollable emotion of terror.Racked and shaken, he stared about him as if he feared another presence in the room. The judge leaned forward and rested a thin hand on his son's knee."Marshall, what do you know of Gilmore's connection with this matter?""I want him let alone! To lay such stress on Montgomery's drunken talk is absurd!"The judge's lips met in a determined line."I scarcely expected to hear that from you! I am not likely, as you know, to be influenced in the discharge of my duty by any private consideration."He quitted his chair, and stood erect, his figure drawn to its fullest height."Wait—I didn't mean that," protested Marshall.

The judge resumed his chair.

"What did you mean?" he asked.

"What's the use of throwing Moxlow off on a fresh scent?""That's a very remarkable point of view!" said the judge, with a mirthless laugh.In the utter selfishness that his fear had engendered, it seemed a monstrous thing to Langham that any one should wish to clear North,
in whose conviction lay his own salvation. More than this, he had every reason to hate North, and if he were hanged it would be but a roundabout meeting out of justice
for that hideous wrong he had done
him, the shame of which was ever present. He saw one other thing clearly, the necessity that Gilmore should be left alone; for the very moment the gambler felt the judge was moving against him, that moment would come his fierce demand that he be called off—that Marshall quiet him, no matter how."Have you been near North since his arrest?" asked the judge, apparently speaking at random.

"No," said Marshall.

"May I ask if you are offended
because of his choice of counsel?""That has nothing to do with it,"
said the younger man, moving impatiently in his chair."I do not like your attitude in this matter, Marshall. I like it as little as I understand it. But I have given my warning. Keep clear of that fellow Gilmore, do not involve yourself in his fortunes, or the result may prove disastrous to you!""I want him let alone!" said Marshall doggedly, speaking with desperate resolution.

"Why?" asked the judge.

"Because it is better for all concerned; you—you don't know what you're meddling with—"He quitted his chair and fell to pacing to and fro. His father's glance, uncertain and uneasy, followed him as he crossed and recrossed the room."I find I can not agree with you, Marshall!" said the judge at length."I do not like hints, and unless you can deal with me with greater frankness than you have yet done,
there is not much use in prolonging
this discussion.""As you like, then," replied Marshall, wheeling on him with sudden recklessness. "I want to tell you just this—you'll not hurt Gilmore, but—"Words failed him, and his voice died away on his white and twitching lips into an inarticulate murmur.He struggled vainly to recover the mastery of himself, but his fear, now the growth of his many days and nights of torture, would not let him finish what he had started to say."Very good. I don't want to hurt anybody, but I do want to find that man, whoever he is, that you and Gilmore are shielding; the man Joe Montgomery saw cross those sheds
the night of the murder; I am going to bend my every energy to learning who that man is, and when I have discovered his identity—""You'll want to see him in John North's place, will you?" asked Marshall. The words came from him in a hoarse whisper and his arm was extended threatening toward his father. "You are sure about that? You can't conceive of the possibility that you'd be glad not to know? You want to have North out of his cell and this other man
there in his place; you want to face
him day after day in the court room
—you're sure?" His shaking arm
continued to menace the judge.

DRIVE PILING TO STRENGTHEN BRIDGE

Twenty-eight Feet of Water in La Crosse River; Traffic Is Transferred

With the recent weakening of the piers under the west bound tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad bridge over the La Crosse river, the company has deemed it necessary to place new piling under the part of the bridge which has sunken, before traffic is continued over it.

The work will commence Monday. As there is twenty-eight feet of water in the river at the point at which the piling is to be driven, the work will be difficult. The placing of the piling will not be completed for several weeks.

A cross-over track is being constructed, and all passenger trains will be run over the east bound track to the south side. The road has employed two extra switch tenders to tend switches at the cross-over track to insure safety to trains crossing the bridge.

JAMES O'BRIAN DIES OF OLD AGE

James O'Brian, Badger and Fourth streets, died at a local hospital last night at the age of 86 years. Death was caused by the infirmities of old age.

Mr. O'Brian has been a resident of La Crosse for several years. He is survived by several children. The body will be sent to Waukon, Iowa, where the funeral services will take place and where interment will be made.

JAPANESE MINISTER COMPLAINS TO BRYAN

Viscount Chinda.

Viscount Chinda, Japanese ambassador to the United States, has lodged protest with Secretary of State Bryan against two American policies. He opposed the recognition of China by the United States, and now he complains that the land bills before the California legislature, which aim to make it difficult for a Japanese to own land in the Golden State, are unjust to the Japanese people in California.

SURPRISE ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. G. Johnson, 528 Mill street, was pleasantly surprised Monday afternoon in honor of her birthday. Twelve were present. A luncheon was served.

BASEBALL DRAWS FANS' ATTENTION

Manager Hayes Hands It Out that Clothiers Will Be Crack Team of the City

With the lagging of interest in bowling on the north side, fans are turning their attention to baseball. The first team to work out on the north side will be the Nelson Clothing company, who will don their uniforms Sunday, if the weather man keeps his promise of a warm day.

Captain John Hays of the Clothiers has been silent as yet as to his possible lineup, giving out the information that he expects to have the crack team of the City League this year. There is a possibility of Manager Olson of the Clothiers importing some new talent this season.

Yehle's Colts beat the Lee's Pets on the Combination alleys last night, winning two out of three games, with a total of 3 points. A meerschaum pipe was presented as a prize to Oel-fendier of the Colts, and a bottle of wine was presented to Roberge of the Pets.

Last Thursday the Imperials beat the Old Styles three straight games. This team is managed by Otto Lee, and is the pride of the north side, as they have been champions of the league for several years. The team has not been defeated in a game this season.

FACTORY FOREMAN DIES SUDDENLY

Frank Hyde, 802 Avon street, died at his home yesterday after a short illness caused by heart disease. He was 49 years of age.

Mr. Hyde was a former resident of Chicago, coming to La Crosse last July, accepting a position with the Hans Motor and Equipment company as foreman of the electroplating department. He is survived by a wife and one child.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 from the residence. Rev. E. O. Vik will officiate. Burial will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

Encourage Kindness in Children.

Kindness is one of the habits that is latent in every normal child. It must be encouraged, and you may be sure that the child that is kind to animals and birds will be considerate in his treatment of persons. There is always something interesting in animals. Children love anything with life, and if taught to care for birds, fish or animals there will be a certain strength of responsibility that makes for good character.

Sunflowers and Temperature.

Sunflowers reduce temperature, and are known to arrest the malaria that prevails in some localities. Hundreds of homes in Missouri and Arkansas, as well as in Texas, are provided with a southern or southwestern patch of sunflowers near the home. It is said to work wonders in that respect.

Oldest Flower.

The rose is the oldest flower of which there is any record. So great is the antiquity of the rose that all account of its origin has been lost. In Egypt the rose is depicted on a number of monuments believed to date from 3000 to 3500 B. C.

RAIL EMPLOYEES FAVOR CAR LIMIT

Say It Is Unsafe to Run Long Trains; 30 Per Cent of Ties Are Rotten

MORE SPEED IN SHORT TRAINS

Railroad Representatives Contradict Claims of the Trainmen; See Danger in Many Trains

Declaring that 30 per cent of the railroad ties in Wisconsin were rotten and that long trains of over 100 cars should not be hauled, L. L. Rodgers of Milwaukee, representing the railway trainmen, stood firm for the 50 car limit bill, which was put before the legislature in Madison April 10. He said that a train of fifty cars would be 2,000 feet long, and with five men operating a train, no longer one should be permitted without additional help.

The bill brought scores of railroad attorneys, representatives of railway lodges and shippers, to argue the merits of the measure.

M. D. Munger of the order of railroad conductors, Assemblyman Philip Gannon of Superior, Henry Mahoney of Milwaukee, representing the trainmen and A. S. Merz of Madison, representing the firemen, spoke for the measure. All claimed that a shorter train could be operated with greater safety and freight shipments handled faster.

E. F. Potter, representing the Soo line, said there were more accidents on short trains than on long ones, and that the multiplicity of trains would increase the danger. In the last few years, he said, wages of employees had been increased from 35 to 42 per cent and that freight rates had gone down.

S. Evans of the Great Northern maintained that the length of trains had nothing to do with accidents. P. C. Eldridge of St. Paul held that the bill to pass, it would necessitate the placing of at least 30 per cent more trains on the road.

E. E. Nash, superintendent of the Northwestern line, claimed his company had spent $15,000,000 in the state cutting down grades and eliminating curves, so that long trains could be safely hauled. "Short trains would mean greater cost to the company," he said.

Paris "One Hundred" Club.

The newly formed "One Hundred Club" in Paris accepts only persons who, in addition to having traveled at least 40,000 miles by motor car, are well-known gourmets. One of the conditions of membership is that every initiate, in order to pay homage to the noble art of cooking, is pledged to reveal to his fellow members the name of the most humble tavern in which he has received an enjoyable repast.

Slippery.

"The 'Banana Baby' is the latest." "What's the banana baby?" "An eastern physician has reared a marvelous child on a diet of bananas." "Marvelous in what way?" "In mentality. Why, the little fellow can answer an almost incredible number of difficult questions." "Wonderful, indeed! One would naturally suppose that a banana baby would be apt to slip up once in a while."

Dirty, Low-Down Trick.

Stealing of servants is a social crime that warrants the most severe condemnation. It is really discouraging to spend three or four years teaching a raw girl to wait on the table only to have the guest of a previous evening entice her away. A servant in the household is a gem, and the stealing of gems ought not to be countenanced. — Charleston News and Courier.

Lessons in Mistakes.

When is it a mistake to take what seems the easiest way of doing a thing? Do you know of lives that have been wrecked by a lazy choice of "the path of least resistance"? It would be a good thing to pause long enough to ask ourselves most earnestly if we are making such a mistake just now.

SHORT AND UGLY WORD IS PASSED

Assemblyman Minkley
Calls Assemblyman Walsh
Liar on Floor of Lower Body

MADISON, Wis., April 12.—The passing of the "short and ugly word" between two members was one of the features of the assembly sitting yesterday morning. It was during the debate upon the Minkley bill, 120A, which authorizes cities to do public work themselves without letting it on contract, whenever the common councils believe they can do it thus more cheaply. Manning, Jennings and Walsh had expressed their opposition to the bill, as had Roessler of Jefferson county. Walsh had made a rather sharp speech criticizing not only Minkley but the socialists' street work in Milwaukee, and Vint took the floor.

"The gentleman," he said, "from Milwaukee (Walsh) says what is not true and what he knows is not true."

"It is true," Walsh replied. "The work done by your man Mullen had to be done over again, and you know it."

"And," he continued, "Mullen had to sneak out of Milwaukee between two days."

It was at this point, and while Vint
still had the floor, that Minkley, glaring across the chamber at Walsh,
said, "You are a liar."

The remark was made in a rather low voice, and not more than a dozen members heard it, for Vint proceeded, not noticing the interruption, to explain that Mr. Mullen had left Milwaukee to accept the position of commissioner of public works in Schenectady, which position he is now holding.

At the close of the sitting Minkley acknowledged having made the remark. It is not unlikely that when the temperature of all the parties
has been lowered by a Sunday rest
both Walsh and Minkley will apologize to the house.

SOCIETY

FAREWELL PARTY

Miss Dorothy Yanzer was pleasantly surprised Thursday evening at her home, 202 Rose street, by the members of the "Juanita," and the "Naiad" sewing clubs. She was presented with a beautiful ivory handled manicure set.

Miss Yanzer has been employed at the William Doerflinger company for several years and was formerly a teacher of the Houston county schools. She will leave for Chicago next Tuesday, where she will enter the Land Lake sanatorium, a school for naturopathic physicians. Her many friends join in wishing her success in her new work.

Those present were Stella Flan-
igan, Loreta Flanigan, Elda Holst, Josie Jansky, Allie Klein, Addie
Klein, Josephine Tonn, Meta Putsch,
Eva Cordell, Adelaide Wilcox, Edna
Nelson, May Torrance, Loba Roth,
Mrs. F. Jansky, Nellie Wotherspoon,

20TH CENTURY CLUB

The Twentieth Century club was entertained Tuesday, April 8, by Mesdames F. H. Fowler and L.
Kleeber at the home of Mrs. Fowler, 930 South Ninth. The lesson, Southey and Coleridge, was in charge of Mrs. B. C. Smith, assisted by Mrs. W. S.
Woods.

Readings were given from Battle of Bloenheim, the Well of St. Keyne and Kulba Khan.
A most excellent paper on social service work was given by Dr. Nimmocks.

MISS FOSTER ENTERTAINS

On Wednesday night Miss Kuni A.
Foster was hostess at a linen shower
in honor of Miss Pauline Rose Engelhard.

Miss Engelhard entertained the guests for an hour, untying the dainty parcels which contained linens of every description.

Walter I. Oeschger favored the audience with several flute solos. Oscar Hoff also showed his ability and gave several vocal selections. The orchestra then gave several numbers and responded to several encores. Dainty refreshments were served which concluded the evening so gaily spent by the guests present.

Those present were the Misses Pauline Engelhard, Harriet Chamberlain, Kuni A. Foster, Emma Mayer, Elsie Halvorson, Martha and Mary Pervisky, Louise Hettman, Belle Martelle, Mayme Engelhard, Mabel
Rodemeyer, Mayme Foster, Verna

Zones of Silence.

Zones of silence such as that dis-to scientists for a long time. Some years ago a committee conducted a series of experiments in the English channel with the loudest and most ear piercing sirens, whistles and booters they could procure. It was found that sometimes on the clearest and quietest day a sound was unaccountably inaudible at a short distance. This demonstrated conclusively the existence of soundless zones and incidentally suggested an explanation of certain ocean disasters.

each one toward getting the most out of life, and should prepare him to do the work in the world in which he can make the largest returns to the community. The school failing to do this is responsible in a measure for the large number of vocational misfits everywhere. That there are misfits surely admits of no denial. Doubtless there are many mediocre professional men who spoiled so many skillful craftsmen in the making; and, doubtless, there are many mediocre workmen, or skilled craftsmen, for that matter, who with opportunity and training might be eminent in the so-called learned professions.

"Every community likewise, has men and women in the ranks of skilled and unskilled labor, who, with the opportunities of these professional misfits, might have been successful in these callings. But, sadder and more pathetic than either of these classes, is the still larger army of unskilled untrained men and women with no life work. This is the vast army, that for one reason or another at different stages in the process, have dropped out of school. They may have been compelled to earn a living; they may have been unable to do the work in school as it was presented; they may have out of mere caprice refused to go to school; it all amounts to the same thing in the end—a vast army of helpless, untrained, idle men and women for the state to support.

The Problem States

"The problem, then, is clear enough, but how to solve it is the difficulty. The problem is to insure equal opportunity to all—to give every child a chance to be all it is possible for him to be in life. It is to make it possible for every boy and girl to develop any aptitude or liking for any craft or scientific pursuit. It is to provide, finally, for every child a chance to develop skill in some direction sufficient at least to command a living wage. To solve this problem the whole scheme of common school (elementary and secondary) education must be reorganized and enlarged. Two great phases of education must be recognized as legitimate ends—professional and vocational. The common division of cultural and industrial is false. Both phases must be cultural.

The Supreme Need

"The supreme need at the present time is a sufficient number of trained teachers to do efficient work in the country schools of this nation. Teaching is not yet a profession in this country. The salaries are so low that teachers cannot afford to make extensive preparation for the work. As a result, there is practically no professional test, and the scholarship requirements are very low.

"The laborer is worthy of his hire, and the teacher is no exception to the rule. Teachers have hitherto seemingly been afraid that the public would think they were teaching for money, and the kind public has saved them from this humiliating reputation. It would probably be a revelation to many good people to know that the average teacher everywhere must stop to consider whether he can afford to spend $5 for the books which he really needs in his work. The teachers themselves have been altogether too modest in the matter. They have waited for the public to right their wrongs.

"They have permitted the public to fix salaries instead of fixing them themselves. And the public has drawn a distinction between what teachers and other people need to live upon. Here is a principle which teachers should insist upon—that salaries are not to be fixed for teachers alone, but for citizens for whom the public has a high regard.

Reasons for Better Salaries

"The successful teacher must make long, careful preparation before entering his life work. In order to do this he must receive such compensation as will enable him to give his best thought to his work. He must have the opportunity to make constant daily preparation. To begin with, every teacher should have comfortable living expenses. In addition he should have enough to reimburse his expenditures in preparation. It should be possible for him to put by a small sum, at least, every year for the time when he can no longer teach. He should receive full pay while off duty on account of sickness.

"In country schools the minimum salary (for the preparation I have outlined), should be $600. From this there should be rapid increase for increased efficiency and preparation until a living wage is reached.

To enable the state and local communities to provide better schools, the speaker strongly advocated changing from the district system to the country unit system for taxation and administrative purposes. He said that some districts are so poor as to make it impossible, with a very high tax levy, to raise sufficient revenues to support good schools. A county tax, with the revenues distributed over the entire county based upon the school population, together with an increased state tax distributed in the same way, would insure better school conditions without materially increasing the burden of taxation over the state. He said that we had come to a time when it was absolutely necessary to put more money into the country schools if they are to do the work expected of them.

solutely necessary to a country's welfare as it has a stimulating effect on the rest of the educational system.

Pays Tribute to Hixon

"In Minnesota there are 106 out of the 210 high schools in the state which receive state subsidies for maintaining vocational subjects in their curriculums."

The speaker, in passing, paid tribute to the generosity of F. P. Hixon who made it possible for La Crosse to have what President Vincent declared is the finest manual training equipment in the state. He said it would help beyond all compute to put children in the channels where they will eventually find what they are best suited for in life.

Culture in Vocational Education

Emphasizing the fact that vocational education in itself contains a high degree of culture, President Vincent showed that a liberal education is not to know so many languages but to live open-mindedly, to have a comradeship as a class or group attitude is not conducive to culture. "History, in its largest interpretation," he said, "is the most cultural study."

"Culture is appreciating one's place in life, in being loyal to a common cause. The problem is to convert industrial efficiency into a culture, for all men and women, to appreciate the beauties of the world."

Cary Says More Money is Needed
In his first public utterance since his re-election, State Superintendent of Education C. P. Cary, speaking at the high school to the Western Wisconsin Teachers' association, this morning attempted to explain why Wisconsin is twenty-eighth in the ranking of state school systems given out recently by the Russell Sage Foundation. This state must pay more money for school purposes, it must practically double its expenditures except for higher institutions of learning which already receive an abnormal sum, he claimed. He said that altogether the adverse report of the Sage Foundation was based on state finances and attendance of children. To compete with other states, Mr. Cary declared that pupils must enter school at an earlier age, attend longer and that more money would have to be spent on elementary schools.

La Crosse county was scored by him as having an average attendance below the average and also as having proportionately six times as many illiterates as in California counties and that La Crosse also stands low in comparison with most of the other counties of Wisconsin.

Musical Program

A delightful musical program was rendered by high school students before President Vincent's address. The Glee club sang "Winter Song" Buland and "Marching Song" by Trotter. The high school orchestra played "La Cinquantine" by Gabriel Marie under Miss Martha Rollins' direction and also an Intermezzo by Theo. Bendix. An instrumental quartet played "Passe Pied," Gillett. Too much credit cannot be given to Miss Rollins and her proteges for the artistic manner in which they performed the several difficult numbers.

In the afternoon of yesterday's sessions sectional meetings were held.

Pearce Talks on Efficiency

"The pupils who fail might succeed if they care enough to," declared Superintendent Carroll G. Pearce of the Milwaukee public schools in the last address given in the teachers' convention on "Some easily applied efficiency tests in teachers."

Mr. Pearce is not in sympathy with the plan devised at the national superintendents' convention held at Philadelphia some time ago, the plan having fifteen members who are to recommend to the different schools a man who is to measure the school efficiency and propose a system of making it better. Just as all things in cooking have common tests so the school has like tests he said.

Mr. Pearce closed his speech with a plea to the teachers to not only live up to the legal requirements but to run the measure over with added things that will make his efficiency undoubtful.

Officers Elected

The following officers were elected today by the convention:

Vice president, Supt. Dan P. Gibson, Trempealeau county.

Secretary and treasurer, Supt. A. L. Halvorson, Onalaska.

Directors, Prin. F. M. Bray, Tomah; Miss Clara Hitchcock, La Crosse normal; Prin. C. J. Anderson, Cash-ton.

never needed to be protected. The farmer's grains are sold at prices established by the prices which his product demands in foreign markets. That is an economic fact. But everything that is used on the farm, everything that is worn, and a good deal of what the farmers eat, but do not themselves produce, including meats, bears heavy duty which brings about the interesting result that the farmer is paying for a great deal of the wealth of the United States and is getting nothing, so far as the tariff is concerned.

Competition Gone

"It was always said that the tariff did not determine the prices because there was so much competition within the United States that they kept competition and trade on the level. But, haven't you seen the competition disappear? Haven't you attended, by proxy, on congressional hearings and court trials where the whole process was disclosed? Suppose the owners of twenty mills, which have been competing, combine. Which will receive the advantage? The most poorly equipped mills. And then what happens? As soon as the twenty are combined, six or seven are closed down and we pay on the products of the others because we pay the money that was needed to shut them up. So the business of the country is staggering under the masses of stock on which dividends have to be paid by the prices charged the consumer. But under the tariff bill the whole thing is up on a new basis and business, itself, is going to burst these restrictions. While our exports in grain are falling off, our exports in manufacture are increasing. We are finding an outlet for these."

This is the president's position, and it was the one taken by the house ways and means committee when it declared in introducing the tariff bill that the 'future growth of our great industries lies beyond the seas.' That was the position that the president will assume in every instance in which complaint is made to him by manufacturers. He has decided that in nearly every instance the business man of the United States restored as he must be under the tariff bill to a position of real competition with all manufacturers, will enlarge his plants and meet the new conditions in such a way that the country will enter upon a period of real prosperity which will benefit all classes.

Y. M. C. A. SERVICE ON ANNIVERSARY

General State Secretary C. B. Willis to Deliver Address at Congregational Church Tomorrow

The thirtieth anniversary service of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the First Congregational church tomorrow night at 7:30.

Several of the down town churches have dropped their services to participate. C. B. Willis of Milwaukee, general secretary of the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A., will give the main address. Mr. Willis was present at the first anniversary meeting of the Y. M. C. A. which was held 23 years ago. He took an active part in this meeting, and has been an active worker in the association since that time.

Frank E. Anderson, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. throughout Wisconsin, will be present and will speak. Several short addresses will be given by local men.

Music during the service will be rendered by the choir and quartette of the First Congregational church. Professor James Kerr will sing a solo.

The public is invited to attend this service.

PAT CROWE TO BE TRIED WEDNESDAY

Pat Crowe, the notorious kidnaper of Edward Cudahy, millionaire packer's son, pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglary before Judge John Brindley in county court late yesterday afternoon and was remanded to jail pending trial April 16 at 10 a. m. He was taken to jail because he was unable to furnish the $1,000 bail set by the court. Crowe is accused of entering the room of Robert Staley, 724 King street, and stealing a suit of clothes, a suit case and a sweater.

Fred Meyer was sentenced to the county jail for twenty days for begging. He had been out of jail for but three days when arrested for the second offense. The first time he served thirty days for begging.

The trial of Miss Sophie Zabowski of Winona, accused of vagrancy, was postponed until April 16.

Sylvester Lynn, of Onalaska, was fined $5 and costs, for assaulting Abner Maynard of Onalaska.

MRS. SMITH DIES OF LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Clara M. Anderson Smith, wife of Frank Smith, 592 North Seventh street, died yesterday at her home, after an illness of two years. Death was caused by a complication of diseases.

She is survived by a husband, five children and her mother, Mrs. C. Anderson, 614 La Crosse street. She is also survived by a brother, Albert Anderson, La Crosse, and a sister, Mrs. G. W. Reed, La Crosse.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from the residence. Rev. E. O. Vik will officiate. Interment will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

U. C. T. MEMORIAL SERVICE TOMORROW

La Crosse lodge, No. 94, U. C. T., will hold the annual memorial services at the new Elks' hall, Fifth and State streets, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The public is invited to attend the services. The ceremonies will be conducted by the officers of the lodge. The local lodge has twenty-four names on its roll of "departed brothers."

$200,000 INCREASE IN BANK DEPOSITS

An increase of $199,659.78 is noted in bank deposits in the city of La Crosse in the two months of February and March. Statements gathered from the various banks of the city show that the bank deposits on February 4 were $9,195,452.65, April 4 were $9,395,112.43. The increase is divided among the five banks in the city as follows:

	Feb. 4	April 4

HOLMEN FARMERS BAND FOR SELLING

A farmers' co-operative marketing association, one of the first to be organized in this vicinity, has been formed at Holmen. The association is incorporated along the general lines laid out by Governor Francis E. McGovern in his recent message on co-operation to the legislature. It is expected that many similar societies will be organized in farming communities over the state in a short time.

The Holmen association is called "The Farmers' Shipping association of Holmen." Its object, as stated in the articles of incorporation, is the shipping, forwarding and transporting of livestock and other products of the farm. The association will also act as a selling agent for its members, and is authorized to perform all functions connected with marketing the products of the farm.

Following are the incorporators: Abner E. Smith, Albert Siolander, T. W. Skogen, K. O. Gaarder, A. F. Meyer, Arthur Nuttleman, Frank J. Schaller, M. C. Nelson, Charles Barber and V. S. Keppel.

HENRY SCHULTZ DIES OF COMPLICATIONS

Henry Schultz, 1112 La Crosse street, died at his home this morning at 9:30, at the age of 79 years. Cause of death was a complication of diseases, after an illness of five months.

Mr. Schultz was born in Germany, coming to America when a young man. He has lived in La Crosse for fifty-seven years. He is survived by two sons, Gustave and Fred Schultz, and four daughters, Mrs. Julia Beulow, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Frank Miller and Mrs. Louis Gautsch, all of La Crosse.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, and at 2:30 from the German Lutheran church. Julius T. Gamm will officiate. Interment will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

NORTH SIDE PASTOR AT VESPER SERVICE

Rev. M. E. Frazer, pastor of the Caledonia Street Methodist church, will speak at the vesper services at the Young Women's Christian association tomorrow afternoon. As Mr. Frazer has been in the city but a few months, this is the first opportunity many of the members of the association have had of hearing him, and everyone is urged to be present at the meeting tomorrow. Miss Nealie Nelson and Laura Emery have been secured to furnish special music and will render a vocal duet.

FIRE HOUSE DOG'S LONG LIFE ENDED

He was not a dog of high degree nor had he ever taken blue ribbons at a kennel show. His pedigree was very short. In fact all there was to it was "Monk." himself. And now Monk has taken himself and his pedigree to the happy hunting grounds after fourteen years of valiant service as chief guard of central fire station where he had made his home since a puppy. Because of his great age and an attack of rheumatism it was necessary to chloroform Monk yesterday.

Perhaps there is no dog in La Crosse who was as well known as Monk. From Grand Crossing to "Hungry Point" he was regarded with affectionate esteem. Full of tricks as a stage dog, he helped the firemen while away many weary hours and it is the belief of his firemen friends that he had not his equal in the city in dog wisdom. Several times during his long life he has appeared on the stage as a trick dog.

Monk was a little yellow, peaked nosed, bushy tailed dog of no particular breed and was seen from morning to night every day playing about the door of the fire station. His only monument is the lump that came up in the throat of the husky fireman detailed to end his suffering.

Many a young man would get a hard bump if thrown on his own resources.

It is also well that the picnic dinner has the advantage of attack by an outdoor appetite.

Studebaker

Those who see the "35" for the first time generally ask the price twice or thrice. Your first thought when you see the Studebaker "35" will probably be that you have been shown the "Six" by mistake. A six passenger Studebaker car of splendid proportions, electrically lighted and started, superbly cushioned and tired and trimmed—at $1290—it seems incredible. Every Studebaker store has already heard the same query repeated a hundred times—"Did you say the price was $1290?" And even the price of the Studebaker "Six"—$1550—will not express your enthusiastic impression of the value of the "35." Instinctively and inevitably you will make comparisons from a $2000 angle. And the Studebaker Corporation is quite willing that you should inspect the "35" through $2000 lenses. It accepts the responsibility of a comparison so trying and will gladly abide by the result. It invites the $2000 buyer to descend to $1290 without any loss in satisfaction or in results.

CITY IS $100,000 FROM BOND LIMIT

More Money Can Be Raised Should Occasion Demand, Says Auditing Committee

CALLS INSPECTION SYSTEM WRONG

Alderman Smith Would Extend Duties of City Engineering Department

The city of La Crosse is still $100,000 from its bonding limit and in a sound financial condition according to the text of a report submitted to the council at the regular meeting last night by Aldermen P. W. Mahoney, Bert Smith and Joseph Bartl, special auditing committee appointed to examine the books and reports of the auditors of the city accounts. The report goes on to say that the bonding limit of La Crosse is very low when the valuation of its property is considered and assumes that the administration of its affairs has been carried on in an economical and businesslike way. Bonds to the amount of $100,000 may yet be issued should the occasion demand. The report was adopted unanimously and without comment from the aldermen.

Declaring that the system of supervision of public works in use by the city is inefficient, Alderman Bert Smith urged the extension of the duties of the city engineering department on the ground that a better supervision of public works would result in the saving of a large amount of money to the city. The occasion of Alderman Smith's remarks was the report of the judiciary committee finding the city legally liable for the tearing up and relaying the pavement in an alley back of the Kroner Hardware company building. A bill for $115 was allowed for this work.

Inspector at Fault
"The committee investigated this matter," said Alderman Smith, "not so much to determine whether the city was liable but to ascertain who was to blame for the condition that required the relaying of the pavement. We found that the inspector was in fault. The pavement was laid at the wrong grade and the basements of the surrounding buildings were liable to be flooded. It was necessary to relay the pavement at the correct grade. If the inspector had compelled the contractor to lay it right in the first place the work would not have to be done over."

"There is no question in my mind that the stakes were pulled up and the grade lost and the contractor was allowed to go ahead and lay the pavement according to his own judgment. I believe the city engineering department's duties should be extended to the inspection of the work. The engineer prepared the plans and specifications and establishes the grades and then his duties cease. He should have the power and duty to see that the specifications are followed."

Rubber Mills Ask Sewer
A petition from the Rubber Mills company asking that a new sewer be laid on St. Andrews street from the new addition to the plant which will be erected this summer to Berlin street was referred to the committee on sewers with instructions to report at the meeting Tuesday. The engineer was ordered to prepare plans, specifications and estimates of the work to be presented at this meeting. The Rubber Mills company proposes to pay the expense of the laying of the sewer on the condition that it be reimbursed its share of the cost when the sewer comes into general use.

Following a request for information from Alderman William Torrance, City Attorney A. H. Schubert announced that the city still has thirty days in which to appeal from the state railroad commission's order for the building of the Rose St. viaduct.

An appropriation of $2,000 was voted for the oiling of streets during the summer. The proposed grading of Nineteenth street was voted down on the recommendation of the streets and alleys committee. A sum of $100 was voted to be used in Memorial day exercises.

Strap Hanger Ordinance Passed
In spite of the unfavorable report of the committee on railroads Alderman Mahoney's "strap hanger" ordinance compelling the street car company to equip all cars with strap hangers went to its third reading and was passed.

A resolution calling for the laying of water mains on Logan and Clinton streets was passed. A resolution permitting the school board to move the old manual training building at the high school preparatory to the dedication of the new Hixon annex received favorable action.

The customary resolution allowing residents of La Crosse free passage of the Mississippi river wagon bridge between April 15 and September 15 was passed. The council adjourned until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. With the adjournment of that session the present administration will go out of existence and the new will be inaugurated.

Good Sleeper.

Their political dispute, according to the account in the Kansas City Star, had not been confined to words, and at last one of the antagonists, with great dignity, said to the other: "Sir, you have called me a crook and a fool, you have broken my spectacles, you have punched me twice. I hope you will not rouse the sleeping lion in my breast, for if you should, I cannot tell what may be the consequences."

MINNESOTA PRIEST BECOMES PRELATE

ST. CLOUD, Minn., April 12.—Monsignor Francis Tichy, pastor of St. Joseph's Bohemian church, was formally invested with the insignia of a domestic prelate here yesterday. Archbishop John Ireland of St. Paul performed the ceremony. Rt. Rev. Bishop Koudelka of Milwaukee celebrated the pontifical mass and spoke in the Bohemian language. Rt. Rev. Bishop Trobec of St. Cloud and Monsignor A. Plut of Shakopee were among the visiting clergy who took part in the celebration. Monsignor Tichy is the only Bohemian Catholic priest honored by Pope Pius X with the rank of prelate of the papal household.

"Yankee Doodle" a Silly Song.
Of the original words of "Yankee Doodle" it is impossible to say one good thing. They are to be seen in the British Museum on a single sheet, quarto, printed about 1825, and sold at the time by L. Denning, Hanover street, Boston. There are 15 stanzas, and each succeeding one from the beginning grows more idiotic. And yet what a sensation the melody has made in the world!—Fitzgerald Stories of Famous Songs.

MILWAUKEEAN GETS "TIGHT-WAD" TITLE

MILWAUKEE, April 12.—District court attaches opined today that, next to the man who eats graham crackers in bed, and he who gives his children five cents to go without their dinners and charges them a nickel for breakfast, Milwaukee has the meanest man.

In her petition for divorce Mrs. Walter Kaysing makes the following allegations against her husband:

Suffered a nervous collapse every time the rent came due.

When the bank informed Mr. Kaysing that interest had been added to his account, he demanded—and got—the two cents expended for a postage stamp.

Saves the tips of his shoe strings, selling them for "old iron."

Earns eleven dollars a week and has a thousand dollars in the bank.

NOTED MILL CITY CAFE CLOSED UP

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 12.—McCormick's cafe was closed after lunch yesterday and a policeman stands in front of the door to see that no one enters and that neither food nor drink is served. The place is totally out of business and will remain so according to the order of Mayor Nye.

The action closing the restaurant was taken by the mayor on the ground that McCormick had not lived up to promises to observe the regulations.

The Kaiserhof, Madrid and Aberdeen cafes also were admonished and restricted in the sale of either food or drink to the hours of 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. and 5:30 to 8 p. m.

Choir Invisible Has a Recruit.

A Kansas man who has lately been abroad reports that this inscription actually appears on an old tombstone in a cemetery at Saragossa, Spain: "Here lies John Cabeca, precentor of my lord the king. When he is admitted to the choir of angels, whose society he will embellish, and where he will distinguish himself by his powers of song, God shall say to his angels, 'Cease, ye calves! and let me hear John Cabeca, a precentor to the king of Spain!'"

Alfalfa Reduces Temperature.

It has been learned by actual experience that alfalfa planted on the south and southwest of the homes of those western farmers will reduce the temperature from six to fifteen degrees on one of those hot, sultry days. There is a cool breath from the alfalfa field all the time. The difference in temperature from the south to the north side of a large field of alfalfa is shown by actual tests.

DOZEN MEN FAIL TO REVIVE BABY

CHICAGO, April 12.—A dozen men taking turns at pumping oxygen into the lungs of thirty-hours old Baby Ters, by use of a pulmotor, failed to save the infant's life. The baby died early today.

When Baby Ters arrived in the home of Arthur Ters, physicians pronounced it dead. Then they detected a faint heart beat and telephoned for a pulmotor.

Scores of men in the neighborhood volunteered to take turns at the pump and help keep the infant alive. The first rush of oxygen brought a response and the beats increased in strength and frequency until the parents took hope.

To keep breath in the baby's lungs it was necessary to pump constantly. There was no opportunity to give the infant food and lack of nourishment caused its death.

The mother's condition is critical.

Small Print Bad for Children.

Small print leads the young scholar to look too closely at his books. He is not yet familiar with the forms of the words, and his eyesight has not yet reached its full acuteness. For easy vision he must have retinal images larger than those which satisfy the trained reader. To obtain these larger images he brings the book too near to his eyes, or his eyes too near the book, and this is apt to be injurious.

Much Sense in Question.

Small Susie had asked so many questions that her mother became impatient and told her that little girls should not be so curious. "But, mother," presently remarked Susie, without a trace of impertinence or "smartness," "what am I to do if I don't ask questions. Ain't I gotta learn?"

First Idea of Sewing Machine.

The earliest attempt at sewing by machinery of which there is any authentic record was in 1755, in which year a machine was patented in England by Charles F. Weisenthal. In this machine the stitch was formed by a needle, having two points with an eye at mid-length, which passed completely through the goods in imitation of hand sewing.

Coffins Many Centuries Old.

Two tiny coffins have recently been found in the monastic burial ground of Peterborough, Northampton, England, and have been placed in Peterborough cathedral. They are said to be the coffins of the twin children of King Canute, who were drowned in Whittlesey Mere as they were crossing to be educated at Peterborough abbey.

Why I bought a Cadillac

Mr. J. E. Zimmer,
La Crosse Motor Car Co., La Crosse, Wis.

Dear Sir:

I am pleased with my CADILLAC CAR obtained from you last year, because it looks well, rides easy and works to perfection. Its my fourth car and my first REAL CAR. The expense on the machine since I received it from you has been nothing, except for oil and gasoline, and I must say it is very economical in the use of both. The car is always ready to go, all we have to do is to touch the button and we are going, with a lighting system that turns night into day. The material and make-up of the car is a No. 1 from stem to stern. It seems to possess all the power and handy appliances of use in an automobile. The CADILLAC people are entitled to credit for perfecting such a machine for the price charged.

Very respectfully yours,

TONIGHT! TAKE A "CASCARET" SURE

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach or Constipated Bowels by morning.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10 cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

CHURCH NEWS

Membership Tests

For the Y. M. C. A.

Young Men's Christian associations are receiving, through their international committee, a good deal of advice favoring the evangelical basis of membership. They find it a live question, affecting in part the theological discussions everywhere going on, and in part of policy. Associations in America restrict membership to Protestants and voting and office holding to members of evangelical churches. In Great Britain only a personal test is required. The international convention meets in Cincinnati next month. This question of membership test has been up for some years. A month ago inquiries were sent out to gain association opinion, and the international committee's statement on this and other questions will be out within a few days.

Student associations are raising the question whether they may not have special privileges in applying membership tests. Roman Catholic young men in large numbers, often greater than all Protestants, belong to associations, but not as full members. The issue of evangelical basis affects them. John R. Mott returns from a world trip in time for the Cincinnati meeting. With him will be George Sherwood Eddy, Fletcher S. Brockman, Galen M. Fisher and other association leaders. The international committee proposes that the Cincinnati convention shall give to associations in America a policy, a program and a vision for work for young men and boys far beyond anything that associations have ever yet realized.

Women Have Efficient Publicity System

Women of the Methodist Church South have built up what is reckoned the most remarkable and most efficient publicity system yet devised. It is under direction of the Woman's Missionary council of that church, now in session in Birmingham. In every auxiliary there is a woman superintendent of publicity. These auxiliaries cover the vast region from Maryland to California, and from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. From a central office, or from the auxiliaries, news of the Methodist church is handed out and published in two ways. One is by a woman's page in all Methodist papers in the south. The other is in the Saturday church pages of the secular newspapers.

The head of the vast service is Mrs. Luke Johnson of Gainesville, Ga., whose genius built it up. Through its workings Southern Methodists and the general public of the south are reached at a minimum expense. The woman's mission council is the woman's section of the Methodist South's board of missions. This board collects and spends $500,000 a year. It is believed to be the only official board in America where women sit as full members along with men. These women are elected by the general conference. This is the more noteworthy since women have not yet attained even to recognition of laymen in any of the Methodisms of the world.

Agitation Bitter Over Change of Name

The agitation in the Episcopal church over change of its name not only grows but gains in bitterness. The highs want a change, the lows and broads do not. The objectionable words are "Protestant Episcopal" and missionaries in foreign lands are being quoted to the effect that converts cannot be brought into a church with such a name. The controversy started removal of the objectionable words from the title page of the book of Common Prayer but within the past week has gone far beyond that. The "American Catholic Church" is now widely proclaimed as the new name of the highs, who say they want everything that the Roman Catholic church has except a pope.

The lows and broads are issuing statements to the two fold effect that so long as there is no suitable name proposed for adoption it is the part of wisdom to keep the old one, and that a church that is aiming to lead in a unity movement ought not to launch a movement that has in it so much of the divisive and controversial. It now seems certain that the agitation will grow during the summer, and come red hot into the

Reformed Church

St. John's Reformed church, German, corner Market and Fourth Sts., Rev. E. Vornholt, pastor. Sunday services: 9:15 a. m., Sunday school; 10:30 a. m., divine services, sermon by the pastor; theme, "Unity in Christ the prerequisite of members of a church to fulfill the church's mission;" 6:45 p. m., teachers and young people's meeting; 7:30 p. m., evening services, sermon by the pastor. Tuesday evening, 8 p. m., Young People's business meeting. All the young people are cordially invited to come. Friday evening, 8 p. m., choir meeting; Saturday, 1:30 p. m., religious instruction for all non-confirmed children of eleven years and over, preparatory to confession of faith and confirmation one, two and three years hence. The earnest instruction of the youth in Bible truths is so important for a true Christian life and a faithful membership in the Christian church that we would ask all parents and friends of the congregation who have the interest of their children and the congregation at heart to send such of their children to this class. Catechism now being organized from this time on until the successful completion of their instruction.

Jacob at Bethel, Gen. xxviii:10-22. Golden Text—I am with thee and will keep thee whithersoever thou goest. Gen. xxviii:15.

(1.) Verse 10—What in all probability would be Jacob's state of mind when leaving home?

(2.) Verse 11—Why did God make night and day, and also sleep, a necessity for both man and beast?

(3.) Verse 12—Was Jacob's ladder anything more than a dream? Why?

(4.) Would you say or not, and why, that the ladder and the angels could have been just as real and helpful to Jacob even if only a dream?

(6.) Where is heaven?

(7.) Verse 13—What would you say the Lord looked like to Jacob?

(8.) God clothed himself in the body of Jesus; would that indicate that God may have taken a body in his appearance to Jacob and to others in the olden times? Give your reasons.

(9.) Explain how and when the land on which Jacob slept was given to him and his descendants.

(10.) Verse 14—What is the estimated Jewish population of the earth today?

(11.) What has been the benefit to the world at large of the Israelitish people?

(12.) Verse 15—When did Jacob come back again to that place, and what was his worldly condition on his return?

(13.) To whom does God promise to be a companion and a protector in these days, and how much practical dependence may we place upon the promise?

(14.) Does God or not give sinners as well as saints necessary things, so far as they will permit him to do so? Why or why not?

(15.) Verses 16-17—Should we place any dependence upon anything which we may think God tells us in our sleep? Why?

(16.) Are there places and times when God is not with us? Give your reasons.

(17.) Seeing God is necessarily in every place where we are, how is it that he does not always reveal himself, or that we are unconscious of his presence?

(18.) Verses 18-19—Why is every place where we consciously meet God so sacred and such a glorious memory?

(19.) Is it possible or not for every traveler remaining only one night in the same bedroom to joyously remember each room as a Bethel? Give your reasons.

(20.) Verses 20-22—Why did Jacob make the vow to give to God one-tenth of his earnings?

(21.) What effect would you say this title vow had upon his after phenomenal material prosperity?

Lesson for Sunday, April 20, 1913. Jacob's Meeting with Esau. Gen. xxxii:3.—xxxiii:17.

The Naval Cat.

The dreaded "cat" is probably the best known of the old naval punishments. Whipping was provided for at least as long ago as the fifteenth century, and in Drake's time the regular trouncing of the ship's boys by the boatswain on Monday morning was regarded as the only means of insuring a fair wind for the rest of the week.

Policemen in Silk Hats.

Savona, Italy, is probably the only town in the world where policemen wear top hats. One cannot help wondering what the policemen's "toppers" look like after the officers have had a rough and tumble with hooligans. Perhaps, however, Savona lives up to the level of respectability indicated by the silk hats and does not possess hooligans.—Wide World Magazine.

A Slur.

"See, I am familiar with your music," remarked the amateur at the musical soiree.

"It seems so," replied the popular composer. "You are taking liberties with it."—Magazine of Fun.

Then Maybe She Didn't. "He spent all his money on her and then she wouldn't marry him."

"No. She married the fellow who wouldn't spend his money on her. That was the only way she could get it."—Houston Post.

Extremes.

"I ran out with my new machine." "What happened?"

"I got run in."—Baltimore American.

Too Deep. "He's a deep thinker." "I guess so. None of his ideas ever got to the surface."—Detroit Free Press.

Spoiled the Show

There is a good story of an actor who was depicting on the boards a powerful pathetic part.

He was made up marvelously to look starved to skin and bone, tottering on the verge of death from starvation, gasping for breath, and weak from emaciation.

Still, he had on his fingers a flashing diamond ring, and the sarcastic gallery reproved him for it one night.

At the crucial moment the hero faltered out in agony to the gallery: "Good heavens! If this fails, what shall I do?"

The answer floated down unexpectedly from the top seats: "Pawn yer ring."

The act was spoiled.—Ideas.

Discriminating Church Goers

A Scottish minister was called in to see a man who was extremely ill. After finishing his visit, as he was leaving the house, he said to the man's wife: "My good woman, do you not go to any church at all?"

"Oh yes, sir, we gang to the Barony kirk."

"Then why in the world did you send for me? Why didn't you send for Dr. MacLeod?"

"Na, na, sir, 'deed no; we wadna risk him. Do ye no ken it's a contagious case of typhus?"—Exchange.

"Fierce"

A Cleveland man who makes a practice of choosing his words with care, a practice which he has endeavored to instill into the family circle, made a memorandum of the misused words uttered by his son and daughter during a recent breakfast. Here is the result:

Elegant, nineteen times. Awful, eleven times. Dandy, six times. Fierce, four times. Great, two times.

When the meal was over the head of the household called the family around him in the library and gravely read the totals to them.

"Gee, that's fierce!" said the son.

"Isn't it awful!" said the daughter.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE FIRESIDE SERMON

By Lucius C. Clark, D. D. Saturday, April twelfth, 1913. Henry Clay, Born April twelfth, 1777

Jeremiah 22, 13. Woe unto him that buildeth his house by unrighteousness and his chambers by wrong."

Henry Clay, "The boy of the Slashes" had the bitter experience of childhood that is equalled by few. His father died when the child was four years of age. A few years of school in the little log school house. He took up the duties of life at fourteen. A lawyer, a statesman, and never quite equaling his ambitions. His compromise in matters concerning slavery seems to have left him shorn of highest power.

No, Cordelia, an inquisitive person isn't necessarily a questionable character.

How American Women May Keep Faces Young

"The American smart woman ages early, far earlier than the English woman," says Christian Miller, F. C. I., the famous English health expert. She adds that our climate "so exhilarates that you over-exert yourselves and grow old before you know it. That same exhilarating air dries the skin. The skin that lacks moisture grows pale and withered looking and soon forms wrinkles."

"The American complexion" is best treated by applying pure merozized wax, which causes the faded, lifeless cuticle to flake off in minute particles, a little each day, until the fresh, young skin beneath is wholly in evidence. Every druggist has this wax; one ounce is sufficient. Spread on at night like cold cream, washing it off next morning.

For wrinkles, dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of water; bathe the face in this. Immediately every wrinkle is affected, even the deeper lines. Both treatments are remarkable facial rejuvenators.

Domestic Hints

(From The Scotch-American)

Only one man in two hundred is over six feet in height.

Eighty-five per cent of lame people are affected on the left side.

The man with a clear conscience sleeps almost as well as the man who has none at all.

Pouring boiling water over lemons is said to double the amount of juice they will yield.

To prevent the skin from discoloring after a fall or blow take a little dry starch, moisten it with cold water, and lay it on the injured part.

The latest manufactured doll is very accomplished. She is adept at kneeling, kicking, dancing, rubbing her own eyes, and crossing her legs while seated.

When a knife has been used to cut onions wipe it with a damp cloth and rub it briskly with coarse salt. The objectionable smell will then entirely disappear.

A man who is not able to make a bow to his own conscience every morning is hardly in a condition to respectfully salute the world at any other time of day.

When covering jam or marmalade use the grease proof paper in which some of your groceries are wrapped. Wet it first, then tie on, and when dry it will be as tight as a drum, and cost nothing.

The Leak Will Be There!

In the fish docks at Aberdeen three steam trawlers, named respectively Rose, Shamrock and Thistle, happened to be berthed together. "What a pity that Wales is not represented!" remarked a visitor, who noticed the extraordinary coincidence. "That would have completed the group." "Oh," said his companion, "I dare say there's a 'leak' in one of 'em'"—London Globe.

Speaks For Itself.

When you see a man and a woman sitting together in the theater, solemnly reading the jokes on the program between the acts, you don't have to be a mind reader to know they are married.—Lippincott's.

Excuses on a job never finish it as soon as they do the man trying to hold it down.

"MY SYSTEM WAS TERRIBLY RUN DOWN

But Much Improved Since Taking Father John's Medicine.

In a recent letter from Cincinnati, Miss Emma Gramke says: "My system was terribly run down and I have improved very much since I took Father John's Medicine. I have already recommended it to several of my friends." (Signed) Miss Emma Gramke, 1573 Tremont street, Fairmount, Cincinnati, O.

Remember Father John's Medicine is a pure food medicine that builds new strength and flesh, a doctor's prescription, free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.

If you have any difficulty in getting Father John's Medicine from your druggist write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

FOREIGN MARKETS

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 12.—The stock market opened moderately active. Prices were lower.
11 a. m.—Trading was dull during the first hour. Where advances occurred they were of such slight importance that they did not affect the general list. Rumley was weak in the early sales and Westinghouse heavy. California Petroleum common sold at 44 3/4, a new low record. The stock market closed strong.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Promise of splendid crops and encouraging reports concerning conditions in the northwest gave the wheat market a bearish tone today that was accentuated by foreign cables. May and July each declined half a cent in the day's trading.

Corn weakened 3/4c for each month. The certainty of heavy lake shipments in the near future is responsible for the decline.

Oats has an easy undertone, acting in sympathy with corn. May dropped 1/2c and July 3/4c.

Provisions were firm on continued hog receipts, with shorts doing some covering.

BID FOR BOUT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 12.—Milwaukee and Indianapolis promoters are bidding against each other today for the battle between Bob Moha and Jack Dillon, to be staged some time before the first of May. Each man has indicated his willingness to meet the other, providing the price is right.

THREE A. A. GAMES POSSIBLE TODAY

CHICAGO, April 12.—It appeared certain this morning that the weatherman would allow baseball fans in at least three American Association cities to satisfy their whetted appetites today. Clear, snappy weather was reported from Minneapolis, St. Paul and Kansas City. The Milwaukee outlook was dreary, a drizzle having been coming down all night. The third postponement is probable there.

STEEPLECHASE RETURNS

NEW YORK, April 12.—With the meetings at Piping Rock the Brooklyn coming about the same time as the Belmont park session, the outlook for steeplechasing here is unusually bright. A lot of young blood has been put into the National Steeplechase and Hunt association and a majority of the new members and owners are riders. At the same time many of the older men are returning to the game.

SPOTLIGHTS

THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS

The success of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills" made into a play by its author in collaboration with Elsbury W. Reynolds, which will appear at the La Crosse Theater tonight, is proving just as big on the stage as in book form it does in the book stores.

The story of the play is based on a somewhat dramatic plot of mystery. An unknown comes into the Ozark mountains and because of his clerical bearing and readiness to officiate for the regular pastor of the mountaineers who live so much to themselves they are willing to let the man live the life of a partial recluse. He makes friends with one family and volunteers for the place of shepherd. In this guise he attempts to expiate the wrongdoing of his son who several years previously had come into the mountains and wronged one of the young women. Her father has vowed deadly vengeance on the betrayer of his daughter, but he has disappeared leaving no traces of his whereabouts. It is generally supposed that he is dead. The good shepherd wins the love and respect of the mountaineers, though at one time his life is endangered by a lawless band of mountaineers who suspect he is a revenue officer.

There are many dramatic episodes in the play, but its strength lies in the unfolding and development of its characters. The shepherd is a most impressive figure, mentally and physically. The young woman who is the heroine of the story is untrammelled by the conventions of the town and has good red blood in her veins. With the aid of the shepherd she polishes her mind so that she becomes a young woman of culture and refinement. Then there is the young mountaineer whose love is honest and sincere and who down the champion bully and strong man of the mountains in a marvelous contest of strength and endurance. Then there is the uncanny youth who wanders like a will-o'-the-wisp across the mountains and is the means of finally bringing happiness to the shepherd and restoring the good name of the mountaineer's family.

THE GIRL FROM RECTORS

The Girl From Rectors, that happy connection of mirth and wit will be the attraction at La Crosse Theater Sunday, April 12, matinee and night. No more genuinely funny and really meritorious mixture of farce and music, has been given in recent years. It's New York success was in the nature of a furore where three hundred nights it packed Weber's Music hall, a theater noted for its critical cosmopolitan following. A thoroughly adequate production is promised for this season's tour and the engagement can be looked forward to with enjoyable anticipation by those who care for the very best in theatrical offerings.

The secret of the Girl From Rectors' success lies not in what many were at first disposed to think a slightly off color atmosphere but in its brilliant and cleverly written lines, its dash and go and absolutely new and novel situations. In adopting it for American audiences Paul M. Potter gets entirely away from the beaten path, without even approaching anything suggestive. His well known versatility as a writer of amusing and alluring farcial plays has enabled him to offer an entertainment that for really funny complications bright wit and unusual plot has not been equalled in recent years. Its marvelous success has proven this richly deserved. The present touring company is of well known metropolitan favorites and no finer performance of it has ever been given.

CURTIS LOPS OFF COUPLE OF HEADS

The headman's axe got busy yesterday with the Red Sox training under Fred Curtis at League park. The squad is shy two men. Knuth, a pitcher, and Catcher Nigbur. Among the men who seem sure of permanent places on the team are Pitcher Rhoades and Catchers Monahan and Benrud. Dad Ford and Red McCauley, the latter a hard hitting infielder, arrived yesterday to get into shape. Practically all of the Superior club men have reported.

PLAY FOR SIDE BET

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 12.—A special match between Al Taylor, local cue crack, and Calvin Demarest, for a big side bet was due to be played here tonight. Demarest defeated Taylor 400-250 in Friday's play. Sutton won over Ortiz, 400-133.

SETS NEW MARK

NEW YORK, April 12.—A new indoor record of one minute, 13 4-5 seconds for the 600 yard run was hung up today following the phenomenal showing by J. E. Meredith, the Penn flyer in the Loughlin Lyceum games in the Thirteenth Regiment armory last night. Meredith easily outclassed his field, and breasted the tape ten yards ahead of Homer Baker of the New York Athletic club. Meredith's performance clipped 1-5 of a second off the record held by Abel Kivlat and Harry Gissing.

Gregg and Lajoie Help Jackson to Put Over Five to One Victory

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Cleveland 3; White Sox 1
CLEVELAND, April 12.—Vean Gregg, Joe Jackson and Noy Lajoie defeated fifteen Chicago White Sox 3 to 1 in the opening game of the year here today. Jim Scott's smoke went for naught against the combined efforts of the three stars named. Nothing but shut out pitching would have won for Chicago and Lajoie and Jackson were on hand to prevent anything like that. While they were employed in gathering runs, Gregg was successfully felling the attempts of the Sox to get some for themselves. Jackson in three times at bat made three hits, one a three bagger and the other two doubles. Score: R H E Chicago . . . 000000010—1 8 2 Cleveland . . . 02010000x—3 6 1 Batteries: Scott, Cicotte and Schalk; Gregg and Land.

St. Louis 8; Detroit 1
ST. LOUIS, April 12.—The Browns again trimmed the Tigers yesterday, 8 to 1. The weather was cloudy and cold and this apparently was responsible for the lack of control exhibited by the pitchers. The Browns were particularly aggressive in the sixth inning, scoring five runs and putting the game on ice. The score: R H E Detroit . . . 100200021—6 13 3 St. Louis . . . 20010500x—8 14 2 Batteries: Klawitter, Hall and Rondeau; Hamilton, Baumgartner and Agnew.

GUNBOAT SMITH HAS CINCH WITH RODEL

NEW YORK, April 12.—The mighty right arm of "Gunboat" Smith was almost useless today after his efforts in knocking down George Rodel, the South African, ten times during their ten round bout last night before the Forty-fourth Street Sporting club. At that, Smith went through the busiest ten rounds he has fought since he sprang into the pugilistic limelight. He was easily master of his opponent, but Rodel's recuperative powers enabled him to stick to the finish.

FRECKLES AILMENT OF MILLER PLAYERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 12.—Seven medicine men gave Wade Killifer of the Minneapolis ball team a clean bill of health Friday, and the small pox scare is dying. When Pitcher Comstock was taken to the Minneapolis quarantine hospital on Friday and Killifer showed rash symptoms, Cantillon rushed his third baseman to the physicians. Seven of them said Killifer was troubled with an aggravated case of freckles.
